No More Gold Standard
440 Miles an Hour
A Prayer to Thieves
She Ate in the White House

—By Arthur Brisbane—

IN SPITE OF Europe's frantic denunciation of our gold standard abandonment, and the loud roaring of American best financial minds, gold, as a monetary standard, is overboard.

The Senate has voted, 48 to 20, that any kind of legal tender, approved by government, may hereafter be used to settle public or private debts.

Our dollar was so expensive that other nations with cheaper money could not afford to buy goods from us, and that suited Europe, which got the business, and, while owing billions to this country, drew out millions in gold from Washington.

That, thanks to President Roosevelt, has come to an end for the present. Senator Reed denounces the Senate's action as "repudiation bringing shame to Americans." If it be repudiation, which it is not, we can say that our dear friends abroad set the example, welching on billions of borrowed money, payable in gold.

Had we got the gold due us we should now have all the gold in the world.

As for "bringing shame to Americans," that is bosh, and if abandonment of gold brings prosperity, by making money more plentiful, the country will endure criticism, philosophically.

Francesco Angelo, well named, an Italian naval officer, who established a new flying speed, 426½ miles per hour, in April, now announces a new record of 440 miles, made in his "Red Bullet." The new record is not official but will doubtless be established. England holds the automobile speed record, Italy the more important air record; this proud nation seems to be lagging behind. In other countries government interests itself in air speed records, knowing that, in war, speed in the air would be everything.

Senor Vincente Murill Gonzales of Managua, Nicaragua, is not rich, and when thieves robbed him, "leaving me with only the suit I have on," he issued a newspaper front page advertisement, the first businesslike appeal to thieves on record.

"Prayer to the thieves in Managua: I earnestly request the thieves of Managua that they do not steal from the poor like me.

"If the thieves steal from the poor these will have to become thieves also, and the thieves' business will be ruined in the end."

Mrs. Pattie Willis South, 81 years old, of Nicholasville, Ky., always wanted to eat one meal in the White House "to compare the President's cooking with my own." Mrs. South, called "Ma" South, ran a hotel for many years.

Mrs. Roosevelt invited her, "Ma" South wished she could have taken the White House bill of fare for a souvenir, told reporters that having been invited to the White House, "Now my aim is to get into Heaven." In Heaven she will meet many that have never eaten in the White House and will have interesting things to tell them, through all eternity.

A remarkable lady is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, very capable for energy, kindness and good judgment. Planning a trip to California to visit her son, she was advised to fly by day and rest at night. She decides to fly day AND night to save time.

In this saving of time and in her constant travel by airplane, Mrs. Roosevelt sets an example of greatest value to the nation's air industry.

Spain's government is worried lest a popular uprising follow the Vatican's denunciation of government seizure of church property, interference with public education by the church, and keeping an "odious watch" on the church.

The Vatican's condemnation of Spain's government, according to despatches from Rome, equivalent to excommunication of Spain's present republican rulers, is most serious matter, in a Catholic country, will provoke intense indignation among populations that are still, by a large majority, deeply Catholic. Church authorities in Spain, while advocating no action in opposition to any law, have forbidden parents to send children to the republican public schools.

King George of England celebrates his 68th birthday with crowds cheering around his palace. Rheumatism prevented his taking part in the brilliant ceremony of "trooping the colors," but he appeared, with the Queen, on a balcony of the palace and applause drowned the music of the military band. The Bible says, "Seest thou a man, diligent in his business he shall stand before kings."

You may add, "Seest thou a King, diligent in his business, he shall stand before men and not fear any of 'hem."

Davis Battles Baring of Incomes; Railway Quiz Comes Next

Washington, June 5—John W. Davis, as counsel for J. P. Morgan & Co., argued to the Senate banking committee, in closed session today, against the Morgan investigation going into the personal stock transactions of three of the partners—Thomas S. Lamont, Wilam Ewing and Harold Stanley—in connection with their income tax returns.

After a long battle, the committee failed to reach a final decision on whether to reveal the income tax returns of the three partners.

Long before the committee met, a crowd began to gather in the big hearing room.

It was so hot that some men removed their coats. The women, predominant as usual, were in summer clothes.

Before any of the Morgan party arrived, assistants of Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, dragged in the big black trunk in which the evidence is stored.

MORGAN BACK AGAIN

Whitney said he expected Morgan, who was excused last week, to attend voluntarily and his expectation was correct, for the elder partner entered a minute or so later.

Accompanied by Russell Leffingwell and Thomas W. Lamont, he was dressed in a dark grey suit

Big Woburn 'Ghost' an 'Eloper'

The ghostly apparition that terrified "spooners" parked about Horn Pond, Woburn, last night, was not the figment of imagination, investigation revealed today.

When several parties reported that a huge, white form, after threshing the still waters, leaped on the bank and disappeared in nearby woods, police started to look first for empty bottles.

Today, it was discovered a white stallion, educated but dangerous, belonging to Bert Hoxie, escaped from a circus which is playing in Woburn. The stallion was also charged with having induced a mare, belonging to Leo Doherty, of Wyman st., to leave home. The mare and the stallion were captured early today and returned to their respective owners.

Sen. Mackay Suffers a Heart Attack

He revived quickly, however, and was sent to his home at 75 Greenleaf st., Quincy, where he said he intended keeping an appointment tonight to deliver an address in Braintree. .

NAVY PUT ON 5-DAY WEEK SCHEDULE

Economy Order Hits All Civilian Work Along Coasts

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Establishment of the five-day week in all shore stations was ordered today by the Navy Department, effective June 25.

The order applies to the civilian field service of the Marine Corps as well as to the Navy Department.

The normal workday will be from Monday to Friday, inclusive. Saturday will be considered a non-workday, the same as Sunday. Employes on a per annum and per month basis will be furloughed on Saturday.

This action has been taken, the department said, because of the necessity for economy in expenditures and to obviate discharges by spreading available work among employes as far as practicable.

The order was issued by Asst. Secretary Roosevelt.

CROWD KEPT FROM 'KING' TRIAL

Only 15 Spectators Admitted as Jurors Are Selected

Picking a jury to try three youths for the murder of Charles ("King") Solomon began today in Suffolk Superior Court, while police detectives mingled with a large crowd in the corridor outside the courtroom.

Only 15 spectators were allowed into the courtroom to watch the choosing of the jury. These appeared to be friends of court officers and personally vouched for by them.

The rest of the crowd wailed outside, within the fenced-off enclosure at the end of the second-floor corridor, to which they were admitted only after brief questioning by court officers and uniformed police.

DEFENDANTS IN CAGE.

The three defendants, John T. O'Donnell, John J. Burke and Frank Karlonas, were arched into the courtroom by two deputies and placed in the cage, Karlonas in the middle. They were all neatly attired, Burke and Karlonas apparently in new suits.

Out of the first three veniremen called, two were accepted by both the commonwealth and the defense. The picking was making unexpected speed. The defense is allowed 80 peremptory challenges, the state the same number.

Joseph L. McNealy, electrician, 101 Draper st., Dorchester, was the first man called and was placed on the witness stand and queried by Judge Raoul H. Boudreau as to relationship with defendants and to cause, prejudice or definite opinion.

He was accepted by the Commonwealth. Then the three defense attorneys, Francis J. Monahan for Karlonas, John F. White for Burke, and John J. Donovan for O'Donnell, went into a "huddle" with the men in the cage. They accepted McNealy.

CHALLENGED BY STATE

The same "huddle" system was followed in all cases. The second prospective juror, Guiseppi Deuterio, candy worker, Rossmore rd., was challenged by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frederick T. Doyle for the state, and excused.

Andrew A. Dixon, salesman, 524 Bennington st., East Boston, was accepted. John Mahoney, inspector, Mather st., Dorchester, was challenged by Burke. He was the first venireman excused on challenge by a defendant.

It was 11:50 before the proceedings got under way, with the crowd outside the courtroom fretting at the delay and disturbed about not being let in for the preliminaries.

Doyle told reporters he had all 40 state witnesses in rooms upstairs. He refused comment on a rumor that a girl would be a star surprise witness for the state.

The men going on trial are three of six youths sought for the slaying of Solomon at the Cotton Club in Roxbury early on the morning of January 24.

They are also charged with armed robbery of Solomon, and O'Donnell is also charged with being an accessory after the murder.

The other three youths are uncaptured.

THE GUSTIN GANG

By THE MASKED REPORTER

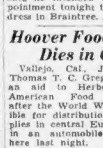
When better gangsters are built, the Gustins won't build them, because the Gustins are sniffed at even by other gangsters as something that was left too long in the nest.



Masked Reporter

The Gustins, even in the opinion of other mobsters, are "nice people" only in the ironical sense, and a history of their past performances bears this out.

One, of their small time rackets for years has been the clipping of small dances and socials, where the difference between expenses and profit is usually something you can put in a canary's right eye, the time being run mostly for the fun of it anyway.

Their method is to wait until about all the customers have gone upstairs into the hall where the dance or whist party or social is being held, but not wait so long as to risk a chance that the hall rental money or the other expenses will have been paid out.

Carrying in their pockets heavy bolts that have been wrapped with electric tape, the thugs then go upstairs and quietly demand a "cut" on the gate. If the man at the table or desk, which is usually used

SPECULATION ON BACON'S FATE

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Here in the capital, Democrats and Republicans alike are speculating upon the political future of Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon of Massachusetts because of the appearance of his name on the Morgan company "preferred customer" list.

They agree that it was only natural, in view of the fact that his father was once a member of the Morgan firm, that he should be included among the Morgan clients. They also agree, however, that nothing could be more harmful at present, in view of the attitude of the masses to the house of Morgan, than for a public official to be identified with it.

The entrance of former Governor Alvan T. Fuller into the 1934 gubernatorial campaign has made Bacon's path toward the Republican nomination for governor anything but smooth. Republicans here believe, but they also point out that much can happen between June, 1933, and September, 1934.

NEWTON'S DOGS GET 'SHOTS'

Today was a "dog day" in Newton.

Nearly 1000 of the city's 3500 canine population was brought to Newton high school drill shed to be inoculated against rabies. Injections were given by Dr. Arthur Boutelle.

Today also marked the inauguration of Benjamin Thomas, an ex-policeman, as official dog catcher. He began his tour of the city picking up every dog he saw, licensed or not, as all dogs are under a 30-day restraining order.

Immunization of dogs against the rabies was undertaken after several dogs were discovered to have the disease. Twenty-two persons bitten by dogs in the last month, or exposed to dogs with rabies, are now undergoing the Pasteur treatment.

MATTERN IS NEARLY THREE HOURS AHEAD OF RECORD

BULLETIN

Moscow, June 5 (AP)—Jimmy Mattern, American round-the-world flier, arrived in Moscow this afternoon from Norway, 51 hours and 37 minutes out of New York City. It took Post and Gatty 54 hours and 54 minutes to reach the Russian capital, so the solo flier is almost three hours ahead of the record holders.

Mattern ate a light meal, gave instructions for repairs to his plane and retired for what he said would be an hour's nap.

Oslo, Norway, June 5 (INS)—Safe after he and the rest of the world thought that "all was over," Jimmy Mattern, smiling Texas airman, sped on to Moscow today, determined to set a new record for a round-the-world flight.

Mattern left Oslo at 1:40 a. m. (E. D. T.) today for the Soviet capital, far behind his schedule, but still convinced he would not only fly around the world faster than anyone ever did it before, but also that he would become the first aviator ever to do it alone.

In the course of a three-hour stopover in Oslo, Mattern told the amazing story of the non-stop flight from New York to Kragero Island, an isolated spot, 21 miles from Oslo.

He described his forced landing in the desolate spot, far off the beaten track, and told of his difficulties and adventures during the long hours when the entire world thought he was lost.

MORGAN PLAYED HIS BEST TRUMP TO AVOID TAX

PECORA FIGHTS TO SHOW UP TRICKSTER

Daring Plot to Shut Off Private Banking Inquiry Charged

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 5 (INS)—Somebody connected with the House of Morgan—somebody with a mighty swell set of brains—put over on Uncle Sam a faster one than Bob Grove of the Athletics ever slammed into the padded palm of Mickey Cochrane.

The talented gentleman figured out a scheme to "Avoid" (not evade), paying the income tax which is a ducky, a daisy and a lamb. It is the smartest dodge, so says Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate banking and currency committee, that ever came under the eyes of his accountants and experts.

If the secret ever got out thousands of citizens who have to shell out their hard-earned money to Uncle Samuel wouldn't have to pay a nickel and, what's more, they would be, apparently, as was the smooth gentleman from the House of Morgan, quite within the law. It's really a bird of a scheme and the gentleman who invented it is almost too smart, even, for the House of Morgan.

MAKES U. S. LOOK SILLY

He certainly made the treasury boys and the income tax office experts look like 20 cents.

But this is all preliminary to the main news that Pecora is going to demand that the Senate investigating committee permit him to bring out all the facts about this eminently talented gentleman of the Morgan firm and about his scheme to beat the income tax.

And Mr. Pecora has a fight on his hands once more. It will take all he has got and then some to break down the new opposition that has arisen toward his inquiry into the individual operations of the Morgan partners. Pecora will insist that he has a right to show how each Morgan partner speculated, or operated, in stocks and how much each partner profited.

PECORA'S CONTENTION

He insists that under the resolution which authorized the investigation he has the right to compare these profits with the income taxes reported to the federal government. e insists he has the right to do all this in order to present to the committee a complete and convincing picture of how the House of Morgan really did business.

Since the firm paid no income tax, the only way the scope of the operations of the firm can be "ot at is through bringing out the operations of the individual partners.

Pecora will tell the Senate committee in executive session today that they must have this information if the inquiry is not to fizzle out. And he will tell them other things that make faces turn red and certain gentlemen shift uneasily upon their hambones.

He will tell them that some body or some bodies, unidentified individuals, were moving heaven and earth to block any further investigation into the affairs of J. P. Morgan and his associates, and into the affairs of six or seven other private banking firms, including Kuhn, Loeb & o. and Dillon, Read & Co.

MOVE TO KILL INQUIRY.

He will tell the committee, in the plainest English they have heard for many a day, that every known move is being made to kill the inquiry and thereby protect the private bankers who are under fire. He will ask them if they intend to let these hidden and powerful obstructors smother the truth entirely by means of the most transparent of all devices, failure to provide money for its continuance.

Threats having failed and pleas having failed, the next move, and probably the last, toward hamstringing the inquiry is to cut off its funds. A week ago, Senator Fletcher of Florida, chairman of the committee asked for $75,000 to run Pecora and his accountants and experts for the next six months or until Congress meets again next January.

ONLY $20,000 ALLOWED

Did he get it? He did not. An appropriation of $20,000 was made, and that sum, of course, is wholly inadequate. At any rate, Pecora is once more in a fighting mood as he meets on every hand evidence of a new attitude toward the House of Morgan and other great private bankers.

He may even go to the White House to appeal for support against these ambushed enemies. Meantime, if the Senate committee permits he will resume his questioning of Thomas S. Lamont regarding young LaLmont's income tax report, and this would lead, the Senate committee is told, into the revelation of the identity of the genius who has figured out an entirely new way of avoiding income tax payment—a scheme out of which he could make millions if he ever could get it patented.

Guns Roar for Ancients' Annual Celebration

Guns boomed on Boston Common today as the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of Boston, oldest military unit in the country, held its annual review and drumhead election.

Today's exercises marked the 295th anniversary of the Ancients and the exercises on the Common followed the annual parade to and from services at the Old South Church.

The Ancients' anniversary day started off with reveille at 7:30 at the Copley-Plaza, where the staff had assembled for breakfast. After breakfast, Capt. Walter K. Queen of Needham and his staff attended a memorial service in King's Chapel Burying Ground, where a wreath was laid on the tomb of Capt. Robert Keayne, who founde dthe company in 1638.

From 11 a. m. to 12 noon, luncheon was served in the armory at Faneuil Hall, and at 12:30 the parade, brave in the colors of the marchers and visiting units, started from South Mrket st. to State, Washington and School sts. where it was reviewed by Mayor Curley in front of City Hall. Then the parade went up School to Tremont st., to Park st. to the State House.

When Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon, in the absence of Gov. Ely, who was in Westfield, came out of the State House the parade returned to the Common for the annual review and election.

Music Facing Boom in Times Trade

Gustins Still at Large, But 12 Officers Capture Cat

A huge gray alley cat and a number of rough Gustin gangsters were running wild in Boston last night. After a long battle a detail of 12 police officers got the cat.

Police busy with their activities in finding places to go to that the Gustins had just vacated were inclined to be contemptuous about reports of a large alley cat terrorizing Chinatown. Finally reports became so insistent that two patrol wagonloads of officers were rushed to the scene.

Unlike Gustins, the cat was still there when police arrived. The cat dashed back and forth biting and scratching pedestrians and police withheld their fire for fear of hitting innocent Gustins who might be among the bystanders.

Finally the cat retreated to a cellar in Oxford pl. and was trapped. Sergt. Francis Donovan and Patrolman John McElhinney despatched the enraged feline with well directed shots. Its head was to be examined for rabies today.

'GIFT' WOMAN ADMITS LIES

Miss Hazel P. Leland admitted in Middlesex Superior court today that her letters to Mrs. Florence C. Hascall, relating to the "Gif Family" investment proposition, were filled with lies, bit she placed the blame on Mrs. Hascall.

She said she told most of the falsehoods at the other woman's suggestion and later asserted:

"I never lied till I met Mrs. Hascall; and then I told plenty."

Miss Leland has pleaded guilty to conspiracy to steal and was under cross-examination by Atty David Greer, representing Mrs. Hascall. The latter is on trial with her son, Coburn Woodbury, and Miss Ida Farnum, for conspiracy to steal.

The "lies" in the letters were written to show investors and to deceive them, Miss Leland declared.

Principally, she said, the aim was to deceive Mrs. Herbert V. Hunt, wife of a wealthy Peabody leather manufacturer.

She reiterated that Hunt had invested $30,000 and said the $10,000 he lent Mrs. Hascall later was for the purpose of "avoiding prosecution of Mrs. Hascall."

"Well, what about the $10,000 you said he lent you; what was that for?" asked Atty. Greer.

"For stock market use," said Miss Leland.

Asked how she arrived at the figure she had given, $125,000, of her stock market losses, Miss Leland surprised everybody by replying:

"I read it in the papers. I kept no records."

She was grilled at great length about the "benefactor" who was supposed to have been behind the investment proposition, and who has identified, now, as a mytical character. She said all the references to him in the letters were false, primarily to deceive Mrs. Hunt, "who had put in so many thousands."

Miss Leland said, however, that she did have some real flesh-and-blood friends in the stock market, one being the late Thomas Classin, who, according to the witness, was a resident of the exclusive Algonquin Club and the Copley-Plaza hotel.

She said she had no idea how much she had received from Mrs. Hascall. Greer introduced checks drawn by the witness payable to Mrs. Hascall totaling $108,560.

She reiterated her testimony about her own personal expenses, including $20,000 for jewelry in two years, $10,000 for auto hire, $4000 on a summer home and large amounts for studying under an opera singer.

TIP TRAPS MAN WITH SHOTGUN

A woman's warning to Braintree police accounted today for the appearance in Quincy court of Pasquale DeMarso of Philomena st., Braintree, on a charge of carrying a dangerous weapon.

DeMarso was on the way from East Weymouth to Braintree to kill a man, the woman telephoned Capt. Charles Baker, of Weymouth. The call was relayed to Inspector Arthur Frost, of Braintree, who detailed Officers Harvey Annis and George Noviine to watch the buses.

DeMarso was seized as he left a bus to transfer for a South Braintree street car. Police said he had a dismantled shotgun, a screw driver that would be required to put it together, and two bullets. He denied that he intended to shoot anyone.

Pope and Austria Sign Concordat

Vatican City, June 5 (AP)—Pope Pius today received in audience Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria and, separately, Kurt Schuschnigg, the Austrian Minister of Justice. Prelates said the concordat between Austria and the Vatican would be signed tonight. There are three main points: Bishops must be approved by the Austrian government before being nominated; the government recognizes the civil validity of religious marriages; the doctrinal part of education shall be confided to the ecclesiastical authorities.

14 Are Killed in French Train Wreck

Nantes, France, June 5 (AP)—Fourteen persons were killed and 116 were injured, many gravely, in the derailment of the Paris-Nantes express train laden with excursionists on the-way to Brittany for the Whitsuntide holiday.

MITCHELL'S STORY OF TAX RETURNS

Banker Takes Stand to Deny Fraud in Income Report

New York, June 5 (INS)—Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the Nationki City Bank, took the witness stand at his trial for income tax evasion today to deny he had defrauded the government in 1929 and 1930.

Mitchell, dressed in a dark suit with a polka dot tie, swiveled nervously in his chair as he began answering the questions of his lawyer, Max D. Steur.

Mitchell began tracing his career. He said he was born in Chelsea, Mass., attended Amherst College and came to New York in 1906.

He testified concerning his beginning with the General Electric Company as clerk, his promotion there and in various other companies until he became vice-president of the National City Bank in 1916.

Previous to the testimony of the banker, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Mitchell, his wife, was ruled on as a witness by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard. The court held the wife of a defendant could not be called as a witness.

It was the first time that Mrs. Mitchell had appeared in court since the trial of her husband began three weeks ago.

The purported sale and repurchase of 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock from Mrs. Mitchell by Mitchell forms one of the important disputed points in the case.

Tshe government charges the sale was fictitious; made for the purpose of Mitchell claiming a loss of $2,800,000. The defense maintains the sale was bona fide.

Granite Workers on Job in Vermont

Barre, Vt., June 5 (AP)—The "Industrial Holiday" of upwards of 1000 granite workers in the Barre-Montpelier belt came to an end today pending arbitration of wage differences as hundreds of the workers took up their employment, which they left April 1.

Forty granite manufacturing plants in Barre, including most of the largest, and others in Montpelier, Northfield and Waterbury resumed work. Some began operations under what was described as normal conditions, while others took on only skeleton crews.

Blind Veteran Is Feared Dead

Fear that Frank H. Smith, Jr., of Minden st., Roxbury, blind World War veteran, who has been missing from his home since Thursday, had committed suicide because of worry his compensation would be slashed, was expressed by friends and police today.

$100,000 Brockton Fire Set, Says Chief

Brockton, June 5—The fire that destroyed the agricultural building at Brockton Fair grounds, with a loss estimated at $100,000, was "unquestionably set" by a firebug, Fire Chief F. F. Dickinson said today.

Inflammable liquid was probably used in starting the blaze, the chief said, because the flames spread headway so rapidly the front of the huge structure fell as firemen arrived.

Caillaux Will Head Frenchmen at Parley

Paris, June 5 (AP)—Former Premier Joseph Caillaux agreed today to serve as the active chief of the French delegation to the World Economic Conference. Appointments to the delegation will be announced by the cabinet tomorrow. The plan is to appoint Finance Minister Georges Bonnet titular head of the French representatives.

Retired Teacher-Adventurer Dies on Martha's Vineyard

Vineyard Haven, June 5 (AP)—The adventurous career of Prof. Edwin C. Wesselhoeft, 74, retired member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, was ended today by death.

Born in London and educated chiefly in Germany, Prof. Wesselhoeft took to sea at the age of 16. He received the foundation for a nautical career in the German merchant marine and later sailed in famed English wool clippers and Chinese sailing vessels. He made many voyages between Australia and England.

The Ballarat gold strike caused him to quit his ship in Australia. There he purchased and worked a claim, but with scant success, and he again headed the call of the sea. He served for a time in steam, as captain of a Hamburg-American liner. When Prof. Wesselhoeft retired from the sea at the age of 36 he held papers as master mariner on all waters.

Upon donning shore clothes the young mariner joined the University of Pennsylvania as professor of German. He remained a member of the faculty until four years ago, except for the period of his World War services, when he enlisted in the navy and served as a lieutenant.

Prof. Wesselhoeft made his summer home here during the past 40 years, and after leaving the university he made the Vineyard his permanent address. He died in the Martha's Vineyard Hospital and funeral services will be held Wednesday. His wife died about a year ago. He leaves a sea captain son, Edward C. Wesselhoeft, Jr., a daugher, who resided with him, and two brothers in England.

ROOSEVELT PUT ON PRESSURE FOR TAX BILL

Calls Harrison for Parley on Balancing of the Budget

Washington, June 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt passed on to the recalcitrant Senate his command for a balanced budget in a talk today with Chairman Harrison of the Senate finance committee.

The Mississippian was called to the White House just before the finance committee met to vote on the new levies to finance the public works program.

Mr. Roosevelt last night warned House leaders if they accepted the Senate increase in veterans' expenditures they must add new taxes to pay the $170,000,000 cost.

The President's ultimatum appeared today to beslowing up the movement in Congress that has upset the economy program and the industrial control proposal.

Congressional leaders delayed consideration of the Senate's 25 per cent limitation on veteran's cuts until public sentiment on a new tax program could be determined.

Mr. Roosevelt made it most emphatic at the White House parley that 1,300,000 men had been put to work since March 4 and if this was to continue the government must be put on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"Faced with the alternative of rejecting the Senate limitation or approving new taxes," House Leader Rainey asserted, "The House right now could accept the limitation and refuse to levy taxes.

"The situation thus is that we will delay action in the Senate rider on the independent offices bill until the members have had time to hear from the people back home."

Consequently, Rainey said, Chairman Buchanan of the appropriations commitee will not call the independent offices bill up on the floor until tomorrow or later.

6 SENIORS LEFT IN TECH TEST

Speakersw were: Dr. Allan Winter Rowe, president of Technology Alumni Association, and Louis H. Flanders of Rochester, N. Y., who delivered the Beaver oration, the annual satira on the graduating class.

STRIVE FOR PRIZES

The opening event of the day was the final competition for the Stratton prizes annually awarded for the best scientific papers by members of the undergraduate professional societies.

Six survivors in a field of more than 50 submitted today's test in an effort to win three cash prizes. They read their papers in turn before judges. Winners will be announced at graduation exercises tomorrow when the awards will be made.

VARIED SUBJECTS

Those who took part in the final elimination were Norman H. Pressler, '33, president of the student branch, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, who spoke on "Rocket Propulsion"; Ramon Ramsfelstein, '33, Sedgwick Biological Society, whose subject was "Refrigeration in Its Relation to the Public Health"; Maxwell D. Millard, '33, student branch American Institute of Electrical Engineers, on "The Photo-Electric Cell"; Morris Guralnick, '33, M. I. T. E. Berry Wall Says Clothes Still Make Man

Paris, June 5—From the lips of E. Berry Wall, septuagenerian beau brummel, comes the recipe for what constitutes the well dressed man.

Twenty years ago Wall caused a tussling of heads and crashing of necks when he strolled down Fifth ave. clad in white flannel from head to foot. He also wore a dinner jacket for the first time in New York and was ejected from Grand Union Hotel for appearing on the dance floor with it.

E. Berry Wall

"Modern clothes have lost personality," he said. "Today modern young men have abandoned formality. In my day no gentleman would appear at a public function without a dinner jacket. I would be go to a lady's house without one."

Tetrazzini Plans New Concert Tour

TWO MORE CAPTURED IN HUNT FOR GUSTIN GANGSTERS

HELD IN ALLEY AT GUNPOINT BY POLICE

Brother of Jailed Gangster One of Pair Arrested

Trapped by police in a South Boston alley, John Dembrowski, 20, brother of the Gustin gangster who went to state prison on testimony of Thomas "Red" Curran, was captured at gunpoint early today for questioning on Curran's "spot" murder.

With Dembrowski, was William R. Morris, who told police his only home was in the cellar of a Newman st. house at the address given by Richard O'Connor, arrested Friday in connection with the Curran death.

HELD AFTER CHASE

Both were held on suspicion in connection with the death of Curran, whose body was found at the bottom of a Quincy quarry last week.

Dembrowski and Morris were seen shortly before 4 o'clock this morning near the Newman st. house of O'Connor. They broke into a run, according to Patrolmen John Petitti and Edward Shea of the City Point station.

When the pair turned into an alley that leads to the O'Connor cellar, Petitti and Shea drew revolvers and darted after them. The chase was short, and capture was not difficult, after the pursuing police warned they would shoot.

After the pair were locked in cells at City Point, police returned to the O'Connor cellar, but were unable to gain entrance. A detail watched the section during the morning, but no activity was seen.

After a lineup and questioning at police headquarters, the two will be turned over to Quincy police, in whose jurisdiction Curran went to his watery grave.

SEARCH A FAILURE

Search for Stevie and Jimmy Wallace, leaders of the Gustin gang, and for Frank Sullivan, bodyguard of Stevie, was still met with failure by police.

Stephen is wanted in connection with the brutal assault on January on Patrolman William J. McDonald, the crime that sent Dembrowski and Thomas P. "Tough" Dineen to state prison. Both are wanted in connection with the death of Curran.

The search for Jimmy developed into a controversy between police of headquarters and the forces of the two South Boston stations today.

The sought man was reported in various sections of South Boston as late as Friday while detectives from headquarters sought him. Higher officials of the department were probing today a report that Jimmy was not molested by South Boston police because no formal notification that he was wanted had been received from headquarters.

DEMELIA QUIZZED

Salvatore DeMelia, of Third st., South Boston, who is sometimes known as John "Bucky" Melton, was questioned at length on the report of his brother-in-law that the Curran death gun was traded by DeMalia to one of the Gustin gang.

DeMalia denied that he ever owned the gun and described the story of his brother-in-law, George Farley, 28, of Holworthy st., Cambridge, as a "fabrication." Farley was still held but De Malia was allowed to go home on his promise that he would be available for further questions.

Constance Bennett and Lilyan Tashman Nominate 12 Women Each As the World's Best Dressed; Four Names Appear on Both Lists

One Gives American Girls the Better Break, While Other Leans to Titled Personages

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Hollywood, June 5 (U.S.)—Who are the 12 best dressed women in the world? If the women get into as heated an argument as the men when we tried to nominate the 12 men who could claim sartorial honors there will be a battle royal.

Smiling Ina Claire gets place on Both Lists

Opinion Unanimous on Mrs. Harrison Williams

Neither forgot name of Norma Shearer

CONSTANCE BENNETT, who awards the palm to New York society women and the titled of other lnads.

Constance, although admittedly a rival of Lilyan Tashman for the distinction of being our most correctly turned out motion picture star, is nothing, if not magnanimous. She names Miss Tashman as being one of the world's best dressed women.

Miss Tashman, unlike Miss Bennett, gives her American girls the better breaks but neglects to mention the marquise. She hands the palm to the women of the stage and screen. Miss Bennett favors titles and New York society women. Look over the two lists so varied and so different and see if you agree with Constance or Lilyan. Probably you will have your own ideas on the subject. I couldn't get any two men to agree on the 12 best dressed men in the world.

Constance Bennett couldn't make up her mind on the 12 best dressed women in America and on the continent.

She furnishes a list of 16, saying that the first 12 in her opinion have it a shade over the last four.

Several names in the Bennett list are unfamiliar to some of us Americans. However, we are printing the 16 names in the order in which they are presented to us.

Bennett List

Lady Louis Mountbatten.
Marquise De Kassa-Maury.
Countess De Vogue.
Barronne D'Almeda.
Mrs. Esmond O'Brien.
Mrs. Harrison Williams.
Mrs. Joy O'Brien.

Mrs. Avril Harriman.
Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson.
Ina Claire.
Mrs. Charles St. Julien Chacqueneau.
Mrs. Paul Dubonnet.
Joan Crawford.
Norma Shearer.
Lilyan Tashman.
Gloria Swanson.

Do you note the name of Gloria Swanson in Miss Bennett's list? Constance is indeed generous, for La Belle Swanson was formerly the Marquise De La Falaise, wife of the present Bennett husband.

An authority on women's clothes, Miss Tashman, who looks like a fashion plate in her costumes sometimes in extreme style but always smart and beautifully turned out, contributes the following list:

Tashman List

Daisy Fellows.
Mme. Martinez De Hoz.
Mrs. Harrison Williams.
Mrs. Tiffany Saportas.
Ina Claire.
Gertrude Lawrence.
Alice Brady.
Norma Shearer.
Corinne Griffith.
Mrs. Richard Barthelmess.
Joan Crawford.
Jean Nash.

The only names that appear on both lists are those of Mrs. Harrison Williams, Joan Crawford, Ina Claire and Norma Shearer.

'SUPER SECRET' POLICE IN WAR ON GANGDOM

Warner to Call Chiefs in Council June 24; Foley in Drive

A super-secret service, composed of the best detectives in the state, is the hammer with which Atty.-Gen. Warner hopes to smash the grip of gangdom on Massachusetts.

This was intimated today by Warner, who revealed further details in war to the death he proposes to wage on gangsters with the active co-operation of all district attorneys and police chiefs in the state.

"The motto of our campaign to restore law and order in Massachusetts, so often threatened by the gangsters in the state, will be that of Charles Pinckney," he said. "It was that great statesman of our early republic who hurled this defi at the Barbary coast pirates who were exacting toll from our merchantmen, 'millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute.'

CONFERENCE JUNE 24.

"That shall be our slogan. Millions for the defense of law and order; not one cent for gangster tribute.

"I shall call together the chiefs of police of every city and town in the state, probably on June 24. This conference will supplement the one of district attorneys, which I have called for this coming Saturday.

"While I expect police heads to aid me with suggestions, it is my thought now that we could organize a sort of super-secret service, composed of the best detectives in the state, who would act in unison to wipe out all gangs in the state, whether they operate in Boston or in Podunk."

BISHOP BACKS DRIVE

Warner refused to comment on former Gov. Fuller's attack on "political lawyers" whom he charges with obtaining purdons for criminals on payment of large fees. Frank Brooks, chairman of the Parole Board, likewise declined to comment on Fuller's attack.

Solid support of Middlesex County in Atty. Gen. Warner's war on gangland was pledged today by Dist. Atty. Bishop in the following letter sent to the attorney-general:

Warner has called a meeting of all the district attorneys in the state for next Saturday at which definite plans for the extermination of gangs and racketeers will be made.

Harvard in Howl For Better Beer

Consumption of beer in 13 Harvard sq. restaurants has dropped from 800 to 585 gallons a day in a month. This is due partly to the high price, the Crimson states, and partly to the fact that students believe beer now on sale has not been properly aged.

The sale of soft drinks, except tea and coffee, has shown a decline since the advent of beer. Better beer at a lower price will increase froth blowing at Cambridge, the Crimson states.

LASELL HONORS MRS. COOLIDGE

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge was the absent "honorary student" in the graduating class of Lasell Junior College today as 70 seniors received diplomas.

Dorothy Guest of Melrose was the outstanding member of the graduating class, winning a prize as the "best all-around student," first prize for scholarship and first prize as the best cook.

Services were held in the Auburndale Congregational Church. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Ernest W. Butterfield, commissioner of education for Connecticut. Diplomas were awarded by Dr. Guy M. Wilson president of Lasell.

Among the other prize winners were Bertha Root, of Winthrop, second prize in cooking; Barbara Stover, of Bangor, and Isabel Lacrosse, of Williamstown, sharing first prize with Miss Guest for being the best all-around students. Barbara Mills, Morristown, N. J., first prize, and Bertha Root, second prize in sewing; Ruth Sanford, Providence, first prize for literary activities.

DOLLY SISTER IS FIGHTING FOR HER LIFE

Jenny, Badly Disfigured in a Crash, May Never Dance Again

(Copyright 1933 by International News Service)

Paris, June 5 (INS)—Probably permanently disfigured, Jenny Dolly member of the internationally famous Dolly Sisters dancing team, is fighting for her life today as a result of severe injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Bordeaux. Rosie Dolly told International News Service.

Jenny Dolly

"It is not at all a question of her reappearance on the stage," Rosie Dolly said. "It is simply a problem of saving her life.

"At present she is disfigured in a ghastly way, and it may be permanent.

"The dancing team has probably broken up for all time.

"Jennie was injured when the automobile in which she was riding left the road and bounced from one tree to another by the roadside.

"Two of her ribs were broken. One of her lungs was punctured. She suffered a concussion of the brain, and the whole right side of her face was terribly torn."

Rosie was unable to keep back her tears as she told of her sister's plight in begging: "Please don't let my old friends see me now."

Rosie said her sister was in a coma for five days after the accident occurred. Her secretary in Paris had no idea of the gravity of her injuries, for in a burst of period of consciousness she had a telegram sent to Paris advising she was merely "shaken up."

CO-ED BATTLES CONVICT TILL RECAPTURED

Chickasha, Okla., June 5 (AP)—The courage of an Oklahoma College co-ed was credited today with a large share in stopping the frenzied cross-State dash of Frank Sawyer, fleeing Kansas convict.

Goodfellow, wounded by a posseman's bullet when Sawyer used him as a shield, was taken to an Anadarko hospital.

After abducting the Goodfellows Sawyer ordered the girl, who was driving, to go to Oklahoma City. The co-ed drove the car into a ditch and her brother attempted to seize Sawyer's pistol.

While Sawyer was trying to get the car out of the ditch, with pretended assistance from the Goodfellows, Sheriff Horace Crisp and Deputy Al Marlow of Grady County drove up. Sawyer seized Goodfellow and opened fire.

When her brother was wounded, Miss Goodfellow, ignoring the blazing pistols, started pulling Sawyer's hair, which being cut short in convict style, proved unsatisfactory. Then, according to the sheriff, the girl began choking the convict, giving the officers an opportunity to close in.

"I was not afraid of him then," she said afterward. "I was just afraid Bob had been killed and I wanted to choke Sawyer awful bad."

AVIATION'S LATEST HERO

HERE'S THE WORLD PATH

Mattern Thought It Was "All Over" on Hop to Norway

Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.

Oslo, Norway, June 5 (INS)—Jimmy Mattern's own story of his epochal flight from New York to Kragero as told to a special correspondent of the Oslo newspaper Aftenposten, follows:

"I encountered the worst weather imaginable over the ocean. I had to fight snow, ice and adverse winds on the last lap of 500 miles and almost thought it was all over with me.

"I did not sight a single ship. My gasoline supply was beginning to give out when I decided to descend despite fog and take my chances.

"Suddenly I saw a small green spot in the sea and decided to risk a landing on the beach.

FISHERMEN APPEAR

"I immediately jumped out of the cockpit and took a look around. My first thought was for my plane. Miraculously, everything was intact.

"The next job was to find help. Pebbles were being beaten against the fuselage and wings of my plane by the rough seas, and I was afraid it would be damaged if I left it there.

"Some minutes later a group of fishermen appeared on the beach. It was then shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon (10 a. m. E. D. T.).

"They appeared thunderstruck by the sight of the plane. I beckoned for help, but they were unable to understand me. They gestured in a way that I took to mean they would hunt up somebody able to talk to me.

"The fisherman went away and a short while later a man who introduced himself as M. Vibrog, director-general of the island, appeared on the scene.

"OH, YEAH!" IN ENGLISH

"His command of English was fair, and for the first time in 29 hours I was able to talk to someone. I told him bluntly I had come direct from New York. Imagine my surprise when he answered in one of our choicest bits of American slang—'Oh, yeah!'"

Then ensued a lengthy session during which I finally succeeded in convincing him that I had flown across the ocean and was anxious to get going again as soon as possible.

"Still dazed and incredulous, he delegated the fishermen to go in search of some horses to drag my plane to safety.

"While this job was in progress, I had a few minutes to look back over my adventure thus far.

"At first I was terribly downhearted because I had lost so much time by flying off my course. But when I realized my plane was not damaged and that there was nothing to prevent me from getting away again, my hopes soared anew.

"Looking at all sides of it, I saw there was still lots of reason to be confident I would break the record now held by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty for the 'round-the-world flight.

"Except for a chill in all my bones, I felt pretty good and experienced no ill effects suffered on the ocean journey. A few hours of rest seemed to be in order, so I had the fishermen haul the plane to the middle of a grassy meadow, which would afford me an easy takeoff early the next morning.

Knew He'd Do It, Says Flier's Wife

Walla Walla, Wash., June 5 (AP)—"My, that's good," Mrs. James Mattern said when told today her husband had landed in Oslo.

"I knew he would do it," she said.

She said she had retired as usual last night, confident he would come out "all right." She is staying here while her husband is on his globe circling tour.

Mrs. Mattern retired again immediately after hearing of his safe arrival.

He and all the other members of his family treated me with great kindness. You would think I was a long-lost relation returning to the old homestead.

"It was a pity I couldn't reciprocate this kindness the way I should. I was too tired to know what I was doing, and my only thought was to get a little sleep, so I could start out again at dawn."

unsubstantiated reports were received until word came through to Oslo that he had landed on the island. Even then, hours were allowed to pass before authorities at the Lillestrom airport here announced that he was safe and on his way to Moscow.

Mattern rose early this morning and took off for Oslo at 3:07 a. m. (10 p. m. Sunday, E. D. T.). Twenty minutes later he landed on the Oslo airport and after a stop of 3 hours and 20 minutes, got away for Moscow.

Mattern had underrated his fuel supply. He had enough gasoline left to make the 21-mile flight to Oslo from Kragero, and could have made the first direct jump from New York to the Norwegian capital in history if he had realized there was sufficient fuel in his tanks.

The American airman was fortunate, however, in having some gas left when he landed at Kragero. Due to the isolated location of the island in one of the many fjords which dot the Norwegian coast, it would have taken hours for gasoline to reach him.

28 HOURS, 39 MINUTES

A few officers were on hand to accord Mattern a rousing reception when he reached land in the early hours of the morning. They listened with keen interest while he related the story of his adventures and lent him all possible aid in getting started on the next big lap of his daring flight.

The air-line distance from Oslo to Moscow is 1100 miles. Mattern loaded approximately 225 gallons of fuel aboard his plane in Oslo, more than sufficient to take him to the Soviet capital.

Mattern crossed from New York to Kragero Island in 28 hours and 39 minutes, according to computations here today. He covered the approximately 4200 miles at a speed of more than 145 miles an hour, despite the adverse winds, fog, snow and ice that retarded his progress.

He was not sighted after crossing over Newfoundland. Lack of communication facilities and Norwegian army regulations combined to prevent news of his successful ocean flight from reaching the outside world until after he had left Oslo for Moscow.

Mattern Fourth to Span Sea Alone

Jimmy Mattern's non-stop solo flight from New York to Kragero Island, Norway, placed him in a group with six other fliers who have spanned the North or South Atlantic Oceans alone in a single hop. It was Mattern's second crossing of the North Atlantic, the Texan having flown from Harbor Grace, N. F., to Berlin last year with Bennett Griffin.

Lindbergh—May 21, 1927, New York to Paris, 3610 miles; 33 hours and 29 minutes.

Amelia Earhart Putnam—May 21, 1932; Harbor Grace, N. F., to Culmore, Ireland, 2206 miles; 13 hours and 30 minutes.

James Mollison—August 18, 1932; Portmarnock, Ireland, to St. John, N. B., 2800 miles; 39 hours and 10 minutes.

Mattern—June 4, 1933; New York to Kragero Island, Norway; 3800 miles; 23 hours and 53 minutes.

BRISBANE LAUDS DIRIGIBLES

Washington, June 5 (ONS)—The dirigible is an absolute necessity to American defense and the most practical type of aircraft for overseas service, Arthur Brisbane, editor and publisher, today told the joint congressional committee investigating the Akron disaster.

While committee members listened, Brisbane outlined a number of reasons why it would be the height of foolishness for Congress to abandon lighter-than-air craft construction.

The Akron crashed into the Atlantic off the Jersey Coast April 4 with the loss of 73 lives after battling a severe storm.

Sherwood Ordered . . . to Go Before Jury

New York, June 5 (AP)—Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today denied a motion to vacate service of a federal subpoena on Russell T. Sherwood, long missing Federal committee witness, who turned up last week in New Jersey. After the motion to vacate, made by Michael F. Dee, attorney for Sherwood, was dismissed, Dee left for Hoboken, N. J., to bring his client before a federal grand jury.

St. Paul's School Affected by Slump

Concord, N. H., June 5 (AP)—Economic conditions may force St. Paul's School, long an educational institution for boys from the country's wealthiest homes, to revise its curriculum, Reeve Schley of New York, president of the board of trustees, today indicated.

Schley said gifts of the school in the last year were much less than in previous years.

SLAYERS TO DIE NEXT MONDAY

The "last week on earth" started today for Herman Snyder and John A. Donellon, occupants of the death house at State prison, for the slaying of James M. Kiley, Somerville gas station manager.

Unless a last minute move by Gov. Ely saves their lives, Snyder and Donnellon will be electrocuted a week from tonight.

ENGINEERS WAR ON JOHNSTON

Cleveland, June 5 (AP)—Amid a setting tense with threat of battle, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers called their seventh triennial convention today as a group of "Progressives" prepared to train their fire on Alvaney Johnston, grand chief engineer since 1928.

The most bitter fight of the organization's history was forecast.

Johnston was in jovial mood as he conferred with officers preliminary to the call of order.

SCIENCE FUND FOR NEW PLANT ALL PLEDGED

Word that no further contributions to the fund for the building of the new $4,000,000 home now being erected for the Christian Science Publishing Society need be made after July 1, was announced today at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Members from many lands—more than 5000 in all—heard the message from the directors, read by Charles E. Heitman, chairman, which hailed the "sacrifice and unselfed efforts" of those "who have made possible the completion of the new publishing house without delay and without debt." Announcement was made of the election of the following officers:

President—Miss Mary G. Ewing of Brookline. Clerk—Ezra W. Palmer of Brookline, and treasurer—Edward L. Ripley of Brookline.

Miss Ewing is a native of Quincy, Ill. She received her schooling in that city and in Chicago.

SERVICE AS READER.

She served as a second reader of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago, of which she is a member. From 1918 to 1926 she was a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship of the mother church.

She retired from that board to become a trustee of the Christian Science Pleasant View Home and the Christian Science Benevolent Association in Boston, from which positions she resigned in 1931 to become a member of the Bible lessons committee which prepares the lesson sermons used in the Sunday services of Christian Science churches.

Never was the necessity of an applied and practical Christianity more apparent, former Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, retiring president, declared in an address leading up to the introduction of his successor.

In her address, Miss Ewing, said in part:

EVIL CONDITIONS

"Perhaps never before in the history of the Christian Science movement has there been a time when the comfort and encourage-ent of our annual meeting uld pour so rich a balm into n hearts, nor when its inspira- and blessing carried be- d these walls could mean so ch to the world of human ght and endeavor.

For, today, that world is fac- the claim of evil conditions in human affairs unprecedented in influence and extent—conditions which know no barriers of race, nation or tongue.

"In human experience, the regenerating influence of Truth begins with the individual, spreads from one individual to others, from group to group until eventually it must leaven the whole mass of human thought.

"Then will wars cease and the true brotherhood of man be made apparent, be seen to be established and maintained by God's law; then will the bounty of God's house be realized and men dwell together in security and peace."

CIRCUS PAID CASH TO GUSTIN GANG

in these places, refuses the gang a percentage, he is slugged with a bolt, the money seized—and the hoodlums are gone.

Usually there is but one policeman detailed to these small public socials and by the time he has returned to the desk after having his attention distracted somewhere else the damage is done.

Nice people, these Gustins!

There is the case of the circus which figured it would save some money by switching from its usual site on a high-priced Back Bay lot and locating on a lot near Andrew sq., South Boston.

Well, everything was lovely at first. The lot wasn't bad. Transportation for the circus-goers was excellent, the weather was good, crowds were coming and the first evening performance was about to begin with a certainty of a full house. The circus management rubbed satisfied hands together.

And then came a carriage—filled with flowers. The carriage was an auto and the flowers which spelled mourning were Gustin Gang leaders with their slightly twisted noses, their furtive eyes and their somewhat alcoholic breaths.

They had come, they said boldly, to make a deal and cut themselves in on this huge entertainment, which was about to open for a week's apparently profitable run. The circus management demurred. What was the idea? The idea, he was told coldly, was that if the Gustins weren't cut in, the circus people and the circus customers would find it very unpleasant.

Even Circus Finds It Better to Pay on Line

More details were gone into and it was explained just how this unpleasantness would be brought about. In the end the circus people had nothing to do but comply with the demands. A total of $2300 was paid over to the gang before the week was up, hundreds of passes were turned over, to the thugs, they had free entry to concessions for their friends.

Before the circus was safely out of South Boston with its personnel and its equipment unscratched, it had cost the outfit just double what it would cost to locate on the high-priced Back Bay site.

Don't tell the Masked Reporter you never heard any mention of that before! And there was no police action taken in the little "business deal." Nice people, these Gustins!

Then there's the matter of Jim Maloney, heavyweight boxer, and his M. & M. Diner at Old Colony blvd. and Dorchester st., South Boston, perhaps the best known and most profitable diner in New England and one which wealthy patrons from the South Shore visit periodically for Maloney's famous special steak.

Maloney is a family man, with a wife and children, and when he's not been boxing he's been working. Although most of his time has been spent almost in the center of the Gustin home grounds he has refused always to become one of the gang.

Maloney Bans Rum and Opens Feud With Gang

Back when Frankie Wallace, then the gang leader, was fighting extradition to Detroit to answer for the Detroit News stickup in which a policeman was killed, Maloney came honestly to the front for Frankie and furnished an alibi, declaring that Frankie was at the Maloney place on the day of the holdup.

That honest service of Jim Maloney meant nothing, however, to Frankie's brother, Stevie, and after Frankie was slain in the North End and Stevie resumed his former place as head of the Gustin gang, a feud between Stevie and Jim Maloney began to smoulder.

The feud was born when Stevie tried to argue Maloney into selling rum at the diner, because Stevie saw a nice outlet for Gustin liquor at this busy eating place. Maloney refused to jeopardize his business.

Then the Gustins began to harass the boxer by cutting up in the diner and making things unpleasant for the customers. Maloney told Stevie to keep his gorillas and his guerillas out of the diner—or else.

As a result of that order, more than 30 windows in the diner were smashed a short time later with rocks and cobble-stones hurled by the Gustins.

Well, Jim Maloney couldn't be at the diner all the time to protect his property, and the Gustins had the police apparently on the run, as well as everyone else in South Boston—so Maloney hired some guards to keep the Gustins back.

A short time later "Tony the Polack" Debuski received a very nice knuckle-dusting when this member of the Gustin gang got rough in the diner. In retaliation, "Tony the Polack" and some of his friends came back and started more trouble. This time Jim Maloney, ju t as a warm-up, knocked two of the assailants cold personally.

Jimmy Flattens "Stevie" in Fracas

On an afternoon in late October, Stevie, the ham-fighter, led a squad of a dozen Gustin gorillas back to the diner when Maloney and a Quincy fireman, Clarence Metcalf, were alone there. Another battle started, police were called, and when they arrived they found Maloney and Metcalf swinging at the mob, toe-to-toe and licking them.

Stevie took a bad beating at the end of Jim Maloney's swings that afternoon and later paid a fine of $25. This was all very mysterious, too, because police, who had said they would ask for the maximum sentence, a year in jail, backed down.

Could it have been the influence of the Gustin relative with the police name the "big leak?"

Jesse are only a few of the aliases of the Gustin Gang. Police ders they attack almost any ts when in the mood—when the der is alone.

ley break windows in stores d homes when their demands e refused, they wreck other sinesses than their own in the crict. They "roll" drunks—but w go on?

GALE IMPERILS FAIR CROWDS

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—A 70-mile gale and rain storm that caused one death here and injuries to a score of other persons and property damage amounting to thousands of dollars in Chicago and other Illinois cities was followed today by a relief from the highest temperatures of the year.

The storm struck with sudden fury last night and sent almost 90,000 scurrying for cover at a Century of Progress Exposition where 35 of the injured were given medical attention at the hospital on the grounds.

Two in Hospital After Collision

Two men were injured and a truckload of milk was destroyed early today in a collision at Cambridge and Hovey sts., Cambridge. Frank Ruggierio, 27, of Glen st., Somerville, driver of the milk truck, and Thomas Tierney, 22, of Leon st., Somerville, driver of an auto, were taken to Cambridge City Hospital.

By Betty Alden

THE JUNE BRIDES will hold the social spotlight for the next few weeks and will furnish the thrills with the "right man" to dangle before their envious friends . . .

Barbara Richardson's marriage to Joseph Manton Bradley will draw a fashionable assemblage down to Harwichport on the Cape on Saturday, June 24 . . . the hour 12:30.

Miss Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Richardson of Lenox st., Brookline . . . She graduated from Miss Winsor's School in 1930 and was presented during the season of 1930-31, winning the election to the Junior League and Vincent Club.

Barbara Richardson

Her sister, Elizabeth Richardson, will serve as maid of honor in the bridal procession and the four bridesmaids will be Peggy Bradley, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, Peggy Little, of Boston, Mary Fish, of Brookline and Eleanor Ives, of Winchester.

Karl Adams, Jr., of Beacon st., Boston, will act as best man to Mr. Bradley and the ushers will be Richard Borden of Fall River, E. Eliot Richardson, the bride-to-be's brother, David Howland of New Haven and Erskine B. Wood of Portland, Oregon.

Weather permitting, the reception will be held in the garden of the bride's parents at South Orleans.

Joseph M. Bradley is the son of Mrs. Kenneth Moller of Centre st., Milton . . . a Harvard graduate with the class of '33 after preparing at Milton Academy . . . his clubs the Owl and the Hasty Pudding . . . everything according to social register.

* * *

Lenkler-Locke Nuptials

ON THE SAME DAY, THE 24TH, Susan Ware Locke will take Albert Easton Lenkler of St. Paul, Minnesota, to be her wedded husband in the Middlesex School Chapel at Concord, Mass. . . .

Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Locke of Middlesex School, Concord, and will be given away by her father when the Rev. Kenneth Gesner and the Rev. Richard Douglas officiate.

Ann Faith Donaldson of Valleyhead, Concord, will be Miss Susan's maid of honor and Mary H. Cochran of St. Paul, Minnesota, and Anna S. Davis of St. Paul, cousins of the bride-to-be, will be flower girls. There will be no bridesmaids.

Dr. Wallace P. Ritchie will serve as best man for Mr. Lenkler and the ushers will be John W. Nason, of Swarthmore, Pa., David Sommers of New York, Warren A. Locke and William D. Locke, brothers of the bride, Henry W. Tate of Concord and Robbins Miller of St. Paul, Minn.

Alice Clark Plans Fall Debut

ONE OF THE NICEST and prettiest girls to step into the social spotlight this season will be Alice M. Clark, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George O. Clark of Beacon st. . . .

Miss Alice will make her formal bow in the fall but is having a sort of peek-a-boo luncheon next Saturday for some of her classmates at Miss Winsor's who will graduate with her on Tuesday . . . among them will be Margaret Blake, Julia Leavitt, daughter of the Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt; Susan Day, Frances Lawrence, Eleanor Shaw, Marian Leeson, Mary Holcomb, Mary Strong, Astrid Rice, Julia Coolidge, Catherine Richardson, Helen Hale, Mary (Polly) Clark, Barbara Taylor, Caroline Hunnewell, Amy Lang and about 50 others . . .

Carnzu Clark, a sister of the debutante, was presented last season and is now in college. Miss Alice may decide to enter Vassar in the fall. This summer she will motor on to the World's Fair and will spend the intervening time at her parents' lovely estate on the North Shore at Newburyport.

* * *

Lorraine Young and Ann Goodale of Weston will be among the pourers at the presentation tea of Miss Laura Robbins, daughter of Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Weston, next Saturday . . .

* * *

Fete at Donnelly Estate

ALSO ON JUNE 10TH WILL BE held the all-spring day fete on the estate of Mrs. Edward Donnelly at Dover to aid the work of the Infant Saviour Guild . . . an impressive list of assistants appear on the various committees, among them Mrs. Norbert J. Reilly, who is lovely enough to go all the way to Dover to see; Miss Julia C. Prendergast, who is always to the fore when good causes call; Mrs. James J. Phelan and her attractive daughters, and many others.

Mrs. J. J. Phelan

Edward and John Donnelly should prove a drawing card for the Fair Things, even if they were not going to stage a peppy little horse show, which will start at 10 o'clock a. m. and end at 1 p. m. There will be a children's competition and musical chairs, and John Donnelly will be ringmaster.

Mrs. M. A. Spillane will preside over the luncheon, which will be served cafeteria style in surroundings unsurpassed for scenic beauty.

Rosamond Vahey, who has been associated with Mrs. Prescott Warren, will direct the play for Contract and there will be many other entertaining events. Arrangements for transportation may be made with Mrs. Edgar J. Driscoll, Parkway 2770.

Bennett's Dairies Complete Record of His Life

By Gilbert Seldes

It seems to annoy a number of reviewers to discover that Arnold Bennett never became a Communist and, in the days of his prosperity, was only as liberal in politics as he had been when he was a struggling writer. When the general strike broke out in England in 1926, Bennett wrote in his diary that it was "a political crime that must be paid for," and the next day that it was "pitiful, foolish—a pathetic attempt of the underdogs," and he adds, "I anticipate that the Tory press and the speeches of reactionary politicians will now be terrible." In short, he was a typical English Liberal, with the emphasis on his Englishness, convinced of the policy of muddling through. The names of Lenin and Trotzky do not appear in the diary of 1921 to 1928; the names of some millionaires, English and American, do appear, and with friendly notations, or, for the English, a little gentle sarcasm. In these years Bennett was one of the great trio, with Wells and Shaw; he was a middle-aged man, prosperous, of great reputation, still working hard, still hoping, I think, to do a work as great as "The Old Wives' Tale."

Gilbert Seldes

These diaries are the third volume of a series, now complete, published by the Viking Press. (A one-volume edition of the same material is the Literary Guild selection this month.) The final years are necessary to give the picture of Arnold Bennett completely; individually, the first volumes, recording Bennett's struggles and his successes, as well as his war years, were more interesting. In the last years Bennett gives us a picture of literary life in London, glimpses of a few fine characters and an insight into his own which is fascinating. No man could be so exact about the cost of a breakfast or the number of words written in a day—and remain interesting unless he had talent of the highest order.

This talent Bennett had. In the early days there is proof of it when he notes in his diary that an ugly, cantankerous woman came into a restaurant in Paris and made a nuisance of herself—and instantly the whole central idea of "The Old Wives' Tale" came to him. In the later years the creative spring is drying up—although there are some good bits about the conception of Lord Raingo—and you learn something else about Bennett—that he remained the country yokel all his life, shouldering his way among those whom he thought more socially gifted, angrily refusing to accept their opinions, sticking to his own judgments.

A friend of mine was invited a few years ago to contribute to a symposium about the United States, his particular subject being the newspaper. It was understood that he was to have no editorial censorship and would be permitted to say whatever he chose. And a few weeks later he received a note telling him that his subject was "The Degradation of the American Press." The latest symposium edited by Samuel D. Schmalhausen (who must do them in his sleep by this time) is called Recovery Through Revolution and begins with a thoughtful, impressive essay on The Idea of Revolution by Robert Morse Lovett. I do not know whether good Communists will like Mr. Lovett's lukewarmness toward the "ritual of violence;" and good conservatives will certainly not like his paragraphs on the "betrayal of the world by the middle class"

Society Girls' Betrothals Are Announced

Several important society engagements have just been announced. Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Brandegee of "Faulkner Farm," Brookline, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martina Louise Brandegee, a member of the Vincent Club and the Chilton Club, who made her debut in the winter of 1926. Her fiance is Mr. Edward James Lawrence, Jr., who rowed in the university boat, while at Harvard where he was a member of the 1928 class. Mr. Lawrence is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence of Brush Hill rd., Hyde Park, and is now in his third year at the Architectural school, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Miss Susan H. Wigglesworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth of Center st., Milton, is engaged to Mr. Edward Fleming Watkins, the son of Mrs. Edward F. Watkins, and the late Mr. Watkins of Spartanburg, S. C.

Miss Wigglesworth, whose engagement was announced over the weekend, is a graduate of the Westover school, and following her presentation in 1927, she was elected to membership in the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

Montgomery-Harris

Her fiance attended Clemson Military College at Calhoun, S. C., with the class of 1924, and is now associated with a Boston insurance company.

Another engagement of interest to society and members of the Junior League is that of Miss Virginia Harris, announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Harris of Lee st., Brookline, during the week-end. She is engaged to the Rev. David Kemble Montgomery, rector of Emmanuel Church, West Roxbury.

Miss Harris attended the Winsor school and the Misses Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. She was graduated from the Wheelock Kindergarten Training school with the class of 1929, and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Montgomery is the son of Horace Perkins Montgomery and the late Josephine Battles Montgomery. He was graduated from St. John's Military school at Manlius, N. Y., from Brandeis College with the class of 1927, and from the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge in 1930. No date has been set for the wedding.

New Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

ON THE LAWN at the Beaver Country Day School on Friday a delightful performance of "The Tempest" was given by the members of the drama class. It was a most artistic performance and the location lent itself admirable for the scenery.

Miss Patricia Parkhurst of Groton made a lovely Miranda, garbed in a costume of the time, tight fitting of a becoming shade of pink, her curly brown hair parted on the side. Opposite her, robed in sombre black, was Miss Marie Haffenraffer taking the part of Prospero.

Miss Sylvia Van Ness took the part of Ariela in a light yellow costume with gay green hat and feather. She enacted the difficult part with airy grace and enchanting mannerism.

Miss Emily Nelson, who took the part of Ferdinand, wore rose and doublets of black with brilliant ferise and electric blue trimmings and huge white ruff. Miss Nelson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Nelson of Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. George Hunt wore a smart ensemble of dark blue with matching hat and dainty white accessories.

Miss Jean Thompson, as one of the chorus, wore yellow, and Miss Lucy Pope, also of the chorus, appeared in sea green.

Miss Nancy Nye, blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Nye of Chestnut Hill, impersonated Ariaon in royal purple, slashed with cerise, and yellow hat, bepluned with black.

Among next season's debutantes are the Misses Mary, Cornelia and Catherine Pentecost. The young ladies are to make their debut together. They attended the Beaver Country Day school and it will be remembered created quite a sensation at Miss Priscilla Phelan's debutante tea when they arrived together garbed in smart afternoon regalia of brown with touches of dashing red.

Miss Catherine and Cornelia are brunettes with trig figures, dark eyes and gay smiling faces. Miss Mary, who wears her hair attractively parted in the middle, is still a brunette but lighter in coloring. She was charming in a frock of flowered silk and broad brimmed straw hat.

Edward H. Fay to Wed N. Y. Girl Soon

An announcement from California of the engagement of Mrs. Valberg Chatfield-Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Harry Buchanan Palmer of Wendham, N. J., to Mr. Edward H. Fay of Wellesley will be of interest to Boston people.

Mr. Fay is the son of Mrs. Jessie Merriam Fay of Milton and the late Mr. Edward H. Fay, who has been spending the season with her family in LaJolla. He attended the Milton Academy and is now affiliated with the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co. and will be returning to Boston with the family in autumn. A grandson of the late Mrs. William Pickman Fay of "The Hundreds," Wellesley Hills and a great grandson of the late Judge Abbott. He is a member of the Longwood Cricket club. No date has been given for the wedding.

BOOKS---And a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

On this page not long ago Anthony Gibbs, who is the gifted son of Sir Philip Gibbs, gave a rather unflattering picture of the type of 100 per cent American who was perpetually praising the eagle and crying out in a loud voice that God's own country was the only place in which to live.

The European came to believe in his statements. "But," Mr. Gibbs wrote, "this was, apparently, a misconception on our part. It was not true. Across the Atlantic in a steady stream come the books, the articles, the movies, the comic papers, all from the hands and minds of the real Americans, all giving us the picture of the real America. Never in history can a people have been so conscious of its faults, so anxious that they should be laid bare before the world. We wallow in disillusion. Why do you do it"

We do it because we are the most candid, the most ingenuous people on the earth. We have the gift of seeing ourselves as other see us, and we have a passion for getting there first. We feel that we disarm our critics by anticipating their criticism. Our tabloids are vainglorious, really. We delight in sensation. We rather like the fact that there is so much drama in our lives. Mr. Gibbs should remember that the chief actors in all our gun play, in all our bootlegging orgies, in the most interesting murders, are the foreigners that we, in the immediate past, welcomed to our hospitable shores.

The ancient kingdoms of the Old World, now tottering to destruction, were not always pleasant places for the proletariat to live. Immigrants were received with open arms to a new Land of Promise, and how they flocked to us! They found asylum here, a freedom they had scarcely ventured to dream of, after, say the iron tyranny of countries like Russia under the Czars, or Germany with its enforced military service. They could enter our open doors, push westward or southward, gain farms and homes and citizenship; and many of them helped immeasurably to build up a stronger race. They formed decent, law-abiding communities; but some, alas! refused to melt in the vast melting pot.

Our hospitality was greatly abused; but being young and naive and rather stupid we continued to allow all sections of our country to be inhabited by aliens, no matter how great their number. Mafias and vendettas, anarchists and bomb throwers horrified while at the same time they fascinated us.

We had gone too far in our open-door policy, and we began to realize it—too late. Then came the World War, and things automatically changed. No longer could the refuse of Europe and the Far East be tossed in confusion on our shores.

* * *

But somehow America has remained, in the final analysis, American. There is a home life here despite all that rushing commentators, visiting us for a few brief weeks, contend. There are quiet villages and towns by the thousands where vice and divorce and drunkenness are unknown. There are peace-loving communities that remain aloof from the maddening crowd, and there are gardens as serene as those to be found in England or France.

COLLEGES OPEN GRADUATION EXERCISES

Commencement activities are already under way in several Greater Boston colleges while others will wait until next week and the following one to climax their academic years.

Baccalaureate services were held by Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Emmanuel College and St. Regis College yesterday. Tech will hold its Class Day today and Commencement tomorrow. Commencement activities at Boston University start today and continue until next Monday.

Class Day ceremonies take place at Walker Memorial this afternoon. Final competition for the Stratton prizes will be held this morning. Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, retiring president of Harvard, will be the principal speaker at the Commencement exercises tomorrow.

Activities at Boston University start today with an informal tea dance of members of the graduating class of the college of business administration at Hotel Kenmore. Tonight members of all classes will join the seniors in their annual moonlight sail aboard the S. S. Alierton.

Tomorrow the college of liberal arts will hold its annual senior banquet at Hotel Commander. The school of religious education will hold its house party at Plum Island. The college of practical arts will hold its senior dinner at Weber Duck Inn.

Emmanuel College held its 10th annual baccalaureate service yesterday in the chapel of the college with Rev. David H. McDonald of St. Andrew's Church, Jamaica Plain, delivering the sermon. The Rev. Richard J. Quinlan, A. M., S. T. L., of Regis College, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at exercises in the college chapel there.

Members of the graduating class at M. I. T. heard the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, pastor of Trinity Church, deliver their baccalaureate address in Trinity Church, to which they had marched in a procession after forming at Rogers Building.

Free Trade Delusion of Secretary Hull Promises Trouble in London

By SAMUEL CROWTHER

This is the second of a series of articles by Mr. Crowther, noted writer on economics. The first appeared yesterday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Mr. Cordell Hull is an amiable gentleman of fine intentions and high integrity. He has, however, certain fixed delusions.

These would be harmless enough in any professor of economics who might at the moment happen to be teaching instead of holding political office, and they would not be particularly harmful to a Secretary of State so long as he remained in Washington, subject to the Congress.

Samuel Crowther

But Secretary Hull in London, as the head of the American delegation, and with apparent power to commit the United States to the service of his delusions, may become a very dangerous man.

The depth, the breadth and the honesty of his convictions make him doubly dangerous.

Mr. Hull's most important delusion centers about free trade.

In the formative years of his life, when the doctrines of free trade were being preached by the British economists as the basis of empire, Mr. Hull became converted and nothing since has made any impression on him—the progress of the facts, the progress of science and the progress of the United States have simply passed him by. He has remained a fundamentalist, dogmatic and intolerant.

MYTH OF FREE TRADE

The doctrine of free trade rests upon the interesting conception that nations are like individuals, in that each can do some one thing better than anything else and so, by doing that one thing and exchanging the product for the things that others can do best, the greatest material, as well as the greatest spiritual, wealth will be attained by all.

For instance, the nations with fertile lands, according to the doctrine, should stick to agraculture and trade their foodstuffs and raw materials for the manufactured goods of those nations whose lands are less fertile but who have a gift for machinery.

The theory, carried to its fullest extent, denies the right of peoples to exist as nations for other than the simple exercises of local government and sees the world as one great, big, warm-hearted family with a level standard of living.

Free trade—although it is practically impossible for any economist to get a job in any university without subscribing to it—is purely a philosophical conception. It has never been anywhere tried because it assumes a state of facts which never has and probably never could be true.

BRITAIN'S METHOD

It is generally taught that the British adopted free trade and thus attained commercial supremacy.

They did nothing of the sort.

They attained commercial supremacy and then adopted and preached free trade in order to retain that supremacy.

Britain built up her woolen and metal industries through nearly three centuries of the most rigid protective policies, including every expedient and experiment that is being tried by any nation today in an effort to build up home industries.

By being the first to grasp the possibilities of the steam engine and also the possibilities of controlling international finance, she attained in the first half of the last century such a complete industrial and financial supremacy that no nation could compete with her.

It then became to her interest to beat down tariff barriers everywhere with the pious doctrine of free trade. For, to the extent that the doctrine was accepted, England would do the shipping business and finance of the world. Simply by dumping goods, which is an aged old trick, Britain could crush incipient manufacturing anywhere.

When other nations progressed beyond the British in manufacturing skill and began to sell manufactured goods in the British markets, Great Britain dropped free trade. That is, as soon as free trade actually became free trade, Britain dropped it and turned protectionist.

Our own country had one experience with free trade. The colonies did little manufacturing, partly because agriculture was more profitable and partly because the mother country prohibited most lines of industry. But during the war of 1812, when imports were shut off, a good deal of small manufacturing grew up.

In 1814 when the treaty of peace was signed, the British dumped goods into this country at such prices and in such quantities as to shut down nearly every American factory.

That brought our first really protective tariff act in 1816, and ever since then we have continued, with only occasional disastrous interruptions, the raising of our tariffs. The result is the richest country in the world.

Secretary Hull, in spite of the plain facts of history, not only keeps repeating the old British free trade catechism, but also he has collected some curious items which he believes sustain his theories.

LARGE IMPORTS, TOO

In two public addresses, but most specifically before the United States Chamber of Commerce, he termed the policy of "safeguarding the home market" a suicidal theory" and presented some figures based on the post-war foreign trade of this country as evidence of the colossal gains which the country might make if only we lowered tariffs to admit more foreign goods.

This, he said, would give to foreign nations the power to buy more goods from us and make us prosperous. He cited the 1922-29 period of prosperity as evidence of what selling abroad could do for our home prosperity.

The details of his figures do not much matter. But it is important that American citizens should not be deceived as to the facts concerning the boom in foreign trade.

During the years 1922-32 we had, until the slump, very large exports, but also he had very large imports. The excess of our exports over our imports for the 11 years foots up to a little less than six billion dollars.

During the same period, through tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances and interest and dividend paymnents on American securities owned by foreigners, we sent abroad about 11 billion dollars and they returned nearley ten billions of this sum to us in war debt payments and interest on private loans.

Taking the whole account, we ended with the foreigners owing us for five billion dollars' worth of goods. During this period we loaned to these foreigners more than seven billion dollars on long-term bonds, in addition to substantial amounts of short-term credits. That is, WE LOANED ALL THE MONEY TO PAY FOR THE GOODS and something over for good measure.

And, although THOSE WHO SOLD THE GOODS got their money and are all for promoting more foreign trade, the WIDOWS and ORPHANS who bought the bonds to finance this trade are not so happy. They are wondering what they are going to get for their money.

Whatever may be the advantages of foreign trade, we are just not rich enough again to set up that kind of installment business. We could promote a bigger boom at home for the same price.

Such is the real character of the foreign trade which Secretary Hull and others are intent on restoring.

POND DRAGGED FOR LOST GIRL

Ossipee, N. H., June 5—Dragging of the Milton Three Ponds, 12 miles from here, will be continued today, in the search for traces of missing two-year-old Sarah Walker, who vanished from the vicinity of her home last May 1.

Dragging operations were started yesterday by Sheriff James Welch and a crew of men. The dragging continued all day and until late in the evening. It is expected that the operations will take at least two more days.

Col. 'Bill,' War's Gamest Guy, Has His 37th Operation

New Orleans, June 5 (INS)—"The gamest guy in the world" is proving it again.

Col. William T. Kennedy is in the Baptist Hospital here and believed again recovering from his 37th surgical operation since the World War. Fifteen years now the surgeons have been whittling Bill Kennedy away inch by inch.

He contracted "trench feet" in both feet and both hands in the last months of the war in France. "Endarthritis obliterans," the doctors call it. Soaked for days in a freezing mixture of mud and blood and filth in the trenches; frozen in the winter weather of France in 1918, Bill Kennedy's fingers and toes began to decompose at the tips. The sensation is the same as if a red-hot iron was laid against the flesh.

THERE is a dish towel you never touch. You turn it on and let it do its work all by itself. It is steaming hot water, right out of the faucet.

Just stack the dishes in a draining rack, and scald them. That removes the last drops of dish water, and has a sterilizing effect. That's all there is to drying the dishes. Close the kitchen door and go away from there. No calling and coaxing Mama's little helper. No scurry on the way to a party or a show. No work. Dishes dried dry. And clean. No streaks. No messy dish towels. You put the dishes away—at your leisure.

This is just one of the time-saving, effort-reducing advantages of modern automatic gas water heaters. It is really remarkable how much is added to your life by having hot water always on tap. Baths at any hour. A hot-water bottle in the middle of the night. What a priceless boon hot water is when you need it in a hurry! Yet gas gives it to you economically.

An automatic gas water heater burns only the exact amount of gas necessary to heat the water you use. No more, no less. Without attention or trouble. Light the little pilot flame and have hot water at any minute for the rest of your life, instantly, safely, economically.

There are other automatic, economical gas appliances too. Call at the nearest office and see how the great strides of the past five years have made gas more useful and convenient and inexpensive and desirable than ever before.

Wageless Servant
Modern gas ranges are automatic. They have time and temperature controls, and will cook an entire meal without any attention, leaving you free to do other things.

Flame Makes Ice
Just a tiny, economical gas flame in a gas refrigerator makes plenty of ice cubes and keeps food delightfully cold and fresh. Low cost. Saves food. Protects health. Entirely silent and air-cooled.

Tested and Sealed
The Commonwealth of Massachusetts tests and seals every gas meter before it is installed in any Massachusetts home. That guarantees us both against errors. Thank you, Massachusetts!

JUNE GRADUATES NOW FACED WITH PROBLEM OF SELECTING THEIR LIFE WORK

What You Choose Is Not Half So Important as How Well You Choose It

By Margaret Matson

NOW THAT JUNE has arrived and schools and colleges are emptying their graduating classes out into the world, countless young men and women are fumbling blindly for the next step. Where now? What should they choose for their life work? Well, we feel, and we wonder if you don't agree, that what you choose is not half so important as how WELL you choose it—how interested you are in it, and how hard you're going to try to be a success in it.

For the best job in the world can make a failure of the person who is not going to bother to do it well. And the worst job in the world is frequently the grindstone that puts the best edge on the blade.

Many Changes

Many of the most successful people have changed and changed again before they found the thing that proved to be the right one. Others, more fortunate, have held their first choice all along. And still others, with persistence and courage, have won success ill—how interested by changing fields far removed from that which would have been their choice.

Ideally, we should choose for ourselves. We should decide where we want to go, what we are best fitted to do, and then regardless of the price, we should go that place and do that thing. But such is not always possible—especially as conditions are today. Circumstances frequently force one into situations which have no bearing upon the thing we feel we should be doing.

What, then? Get discouraged or bitter? No. Do the job WELL, no matter how unpleasant, for it pays. Everything changes, and sometimes in the change we find that what seemed to be an insurmountable barrier is in reality the door to success. It simply behooves us to find the knob to open it.

Different Work

Different people can be successful in any of several different kinds of work if they're willing to throw themselves into it wholeheartedly. And after all, it's accomplishment and contribution that count, not the pleasure we enjoy on the way.

If you are one of the number of girls who have asked our advice, let us suggest this: that you talk to several people who know you well and whose opinion you respect. See what they have to suggest in your particular case.

If you are human, you'll use your own judgment anyway, but their advice will be tremendously worthwhile. Then when you plan to do, go to it, and do it WELL. That's what counts. And good luck to you.

Your Fortune Disclosed in Tea Cup

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

WERE YOU ONE of the fortunates who enjoyed the delicious tea that was served at the "Salute to Summer" Spring opening? I not only enjoyed the perfect cup that cheers, but fell heir to a clever book that lifted the veil of mystery from tea cup reading.

Select a cup that flares gently towards the top without fussy decorations. Do not strain the tea or use a tea-ball, but pour it in leaves and all. A very little of the beverage is allowed to remain in the cup after you drink the tea and the fortune teller asks the subject to lift the cup by the handle and swish the liquid around in it three times from left to right. Then turn the cup gently over the saucer, liquid and all, with the handle toward the subject, and turning it slowly three times, making a silent wish.

Reader Takes It

The cup reader now takes the cup. The handle represents the person consulting the oracle, and the nearer the symbols lie to the handle, the nearer the time or the shorter the distance in the fortune. The rim of the cup also signifies present time; the sides represent the future, which becomes more remote until the bottom of the cup is reached. After the reading, the consultant must not look again into the cup.

Practice develops the ability of the reader to combine the five great points of cup reading—symbolism, sympathy, observation, the association of ideas and the ability to draw fitting analogies.

Study the cup slowly. If the symbols are clear, even though the leaves are few, a well connected fortune may be read.

The mainly recurring symbols should be memorized, later to be woven together in a connective manner. The seer first looks for an omen regarding a wish—the wish is represented by a complete figure such as a circle, square or oblong—if the outline is broken the wish will not be filled completely.

Meaning of Symbols

The more common omens are an anchor, clover leaf, crown, arch, butterfly, frog, angel, triangle, tree, flower, bouquet or wreath, an hour-glass, arrow, gun, sword or wild beast.

An anchor, constancy in love. An angel, bearer of good news. A chain unbroken, an early marriage; if broken, difficulties in emotional affairs. Flowers, a happy marriage. A harp, ditto. A heart with a ring, a genuine love match. A horse-shoe, a happy marriage. A man, appearing in the cup with any of the love symbols, is THE man—clearly defined, a brunette; somewhat indistinct, a blond.

Man's Place to Write Girl

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

There is one thing about friendships made in the summer that puzzles me very much. I am a young lady of 23 and spend my vacations the way most girls do at summer resorts. When a girl, during her vacation at a summer place, meets a young man and they become such good friends that they agree to correspond, which should be the first to write? BARBARA.

The man should take the initiative in this . . . as in most matters between men and women. For a girl to write to a man after a man has asked for the privilege of writing to her, would certainly make her appear overanxious. And misplaced enthusiasm of this kind can so easily be misinterpreted.

Rings

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does the bridegroom purchase with his wedding ring and the bride's wedding ring, or does the bride purchase his ring?

READER.

The Marry-Go-Round; You Personally

By HELEN ROWLAND

I CANNOT EXPRESS the heartfelt thanks I feel to you and you and YOU—to each and everyone, who took the time and trouble in these busy days to send me a line or a letter or a postcard of greeting and welcome on my return to this space.

Your letter may be answered before this appears—or at least may be acknowledged by a line of appreciation.

And I want to thank, just as deeply and heartily, all those of you who wrote me or the editor while I was away to say that you missed my column or to express regret for my illness.

Believe it or not, these spontaneous and unexpected letters have done more to buck me up than all the doctor's tonics. Every day, while they were arriving, was Christmas Day to ME!

You see, every writer, good, bad or indifferent, is a highly sensitized person, with a morbid, underlying inferiority complex, no matter how conceited or cocky or cynical he may appear on the surface. And he (or she) can swallow, without choking, all the encouragement, compliments and applause you can feed him. He needs a cheer leader, every minute.

So, when you drop your favorite novelist or pet a line of praise or enthusiasm, don't be shy and don't apologize. He (or she) will not toss it scornfully into the wastebasket—he'll EAT IT UP and love you for it! And you can't lay it on too thick—it's all bound to STICK.

IN A CHILD'S ROOM

DR. COPELAND ON HEALTH

Hangnail a Seat of Infection

"PARONYCHIA" is a harsh word. It is the medical name for an infection around the edge or root of a nail.

It is commonly called a "run around." Paronychia is regarded as having come from an infection with the "staphylococcus" germ. It is frequently traced to neglect in the hygiene of the hands.

Dr. Copeland

The skin serves many purposes. Through it certain waste products are passed off from the body. This is accomplished by sweating.

The skin contains many small nerve endings. They send messages to the brain and relay warnings of heat, cold, roughness, smoothness, hardness and other sensations. Primarily the skin serves as a covering to protect the structures lying beneath it.

Germs can enter the tissues beneath the skin only when there is a tear or break in the surface. So simple a thing as a pin prick may permit the infection to take place. Often the injury is so slight as to be entirely overlooked. Amputated fingers and in some cases the loss of a hand may be traced to neglect of a minor infection of the finger.

A throbbing sensation is the first sign of infection. The finger becomes red and swollen. Sleep and rest are often impossible because of the severe pain. The nail becomes dark, raised at the edge, and extremely painful to touch.

Salves and ointments are of no value in the cure of this affliction. It can only be relieved by a small incision which permits the pus to escape. The earlier this is done the quicker the cure of the infection.

In rare instances the skin may break and allow some of the pus to escape. This relieves the tension and the pain is greatly diminished. Unfortunately, the relief is only of short duration. Sooner or later the pus again accumulates, the nail becomes distorted and pain and discomfort are felt. When this occurs, the condition is called "chronic paronychia." It requires a larger, incision and takes longer to heal.

Health Queries

? Q.—What would you advise for pimples on the face? 2: What should a woman of 25, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weigh? 3: Is yeast in itself fattening? 4: What would be apt to cause falling hair in a three-year-old child?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2: She should weigh about 135 pounds—this would be about average as determined by examination of a large number of persons. 3: No. 4: This would be rather difficult to determine without examining the child and knowing more about her condition. See your doctor for his advice.

MeetMoreGirls Is Advice of Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm one of your daily readers, and I want a little advice. I am just a working girl, seventeen years old. I do not bother much with boys, but I do like one of them more than the rest. He is twenty. I haven't known him very long, and he has been in our home only a few times. Mother likes him, too, and he is one of the fortunate—has a good job. How could I get a little better acquainted with him? Or do you think I'm too young to have men friends. Mother suggests I write to you M. M.

Dear M. M.: I think It is a very good idea for young people to have friends of their own age, both boys and girls, especially when their parents approve of the young people in question. But seventeen seems to me to be quite too young for serious affairs or becoming engaged. Just have a good time as chums or pals. It is always a friendly gesture to invite young people in for a family meal. Sunday night supper is nice and informal and so easy to get—especially at this time of the year, when cold things like salads are enjoyable.

Just Won't Give Her Up

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I grew tired of a certain boy after I had gone "steady" with him for six months, and I told him I wasn't going to go with him any more. He cried and told me how much he loved me. I felt sorry for him, but I wouldn't change my mind. All summer he followed me wherever I went, and called me up. It got on my nerves. My mother gave a party for him on his birthday. He asked me to go "steady" with him again, and I did. But I tired of him again and told him I was going to quit. He made another scene. He is eighteen and I am seventeen. I told him, and my mother has told him, to go out and meet other girls, and maybe he'll find someone he will love instead of me. DULCY.

Dear Dulcy—Your mother's advice that this boy should become acquainted with other girls is very good, indeed, and I only hope he is going to be sensible and follow it. Not to hurt his feelings, you might declare a moratorium for six months, and make it a condition of resuming even a sisterly friendship, that he become acquainted with other girls meantime.

THE DAILY TRUE STORY

Crossed Wires

MARY LENNON decided to get out and find a job. Her husband laughed at her efforts.

"Where are you gonna find it?" he joshed, good naturedly.

"Well, we can't go on on your present salary," she retorted; "one more cut and we might as well move into the workhouse. Anyway, I always was lucky when I was single."

"I don't like the idea of being something of a gigolo, and I'm still old-fashioned enough to believe that a woman's place is in her home—during the day—still, I can't stop you," Jack yielded finally.

So Mary left her name with several agencies and invested a few cents in paper and stamps and replied to several of the classified advertisements. She had been an efficient stenographer and bookkeeper before she took up cooking and housekeeping and her recommendations were excellent.

Her belief in her luck proved true. For within a week she received a response to one of her applications and forthwith she appeared at the office and was taken.

The dinner was only half done when her husband came home that evening—but she made up by telling him all about it.

"It's a real estate office," she told him, "and apparently not very busy. There are men walking in and out all the time—and closeted in conferences. I only had two letters to type all day. I guess I'll ask to take a book along tomorrow—to keep myself busy."

Jack took it all in. "And the money?" he inquired.

FINDS POSITION

"I was keeping that for the last," she replied. "It's almost incredible. For present days anyways—$25 a week. Can you believe it. I feel as if I almost fell into a gold mine."

"It sounds like it," Jack came back, "but there must be something wrong, about it. Business men are not throwing out money these days—and surely not in real estate offices, where they can't raise a dime even on gilt-edged mortgages. It doesn't ring true."

About three weeks passed thus. Mary had very little to do in her job—and even she began to wonder why they should be paying her such a high salary. She even spoke to her boss about it —what if—she asked for more work to do. He told her not to worry, adding that he didn't believe in paying wages and that she will have plenty to do when work picks up.

Jack, however, remained suspicious.

"I can't understand it," he used to say to Mary; "what did you do to earn your money today?"

"Oh, I answered a number of phone calls and took some cryptic messages. You know, the boss—is swell, I mean; he is so refined and elegant—and such a gentleman. But some of the people who come to see him—ugh! No wonder the real estate business has gone to blazes."

So it was no surprise to Jack that one day he suddenly received a phone call in his place of business—it was from Mary. Her voice sounded strange and agitated.

TAKEN TO JAIL

"Jack," she sobbed over the phone, "I've been taken to the police station. Please come right over. Something dreadful has happened. I still don't know what it is all about."

Jack called up an attorney friend of his and both rushed to the police station. There they were told the real estate office had been merely a blind—for bootleg and other illegal activities. They had apparently questioned and requisitioned Mary.

The arrival of Jack was opportune for the police. They started to question him also. Finally, the police became convinced that neither knew anything that could help them in their case.

Mary and Jack were on their way home. Jack had concluded a long and sharp harangue about the duties of a wife to stay at home. Mary was fully repentant sobbing on his shoulder.

"And yet," she remarked between tears, "maybe if I wasn't so scared I would do it again."

"What do you mean?" asked Jack.

"Well, you see—indirectly, sort of—I performed a public duty," answered Mary; "do you know how the police came to trap them all?"

"No," growled Jack, "and not even interested."

"Well, I'll tell you anyway," she continued, "because you're the one responsible—when you called me up yesterday and started kidding me about your suspicions. Well, the wire got crossed with a police wire and they heard every word of it—and they followed up the tip. Aren't you glad you're a hero?"

"Maybe I am," answered Jack, "but I'll never get another chance—because hereafter you will stay home."

Here's WHY, Miss Bennett! SCIENTISTS now Explain...

"Nature puts certain precious elements into every type of skin to keep it smooth and young. But these elements are gradually lost with the years; then skin grows dull, rough, old-looking.

"This beauty soap," scientists go on to say, "actually contains precious elements skin itself has and must have, to stay youthful. It checks the loss of these precious elements."

JOAN BENNETT

Lovely Fox star. Scientists now tell her why this soap is such a wonderful aid in keeping her skin young-looking.

This soap contains precious elements Nature puts in skin itself

THINK OF IT! Scientists find this beauty soap actually contains precious elements skin itself has—and must have to stay youthful!

Here's news of vital importance to every woman who ever has said to herself: "I wish I could keep my skin radiant, smooth, YOUNG-LOOKING."

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Nature, you know, puts certain precious elements in every type of skin. These elements are present in abundance in youthful skin, keeping it radiantly smooth and young-looking. But as the years go by, these elements are gradually lost, making skin rough . . . dry . . . old-looking.

But here is good news: Scientists now say, you can check the loss of these precious elements!

Scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap, with its complete freedom from harshness, its ready solubility, and its content of precious elements, is an unquestionable aid in keeping skin smooth . . . young-looking.

No wonder screen stars, whose complexions must always be at the peak of perfection, are so devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. 686 out of the 694 important Hollywood actresses use it. And it's the official soap in all the big film studios.

A Lovelier YOU

Hollywood has found, through years of experience, that this fragrant, white soap actually keeps skin younger-looking. Millions of men and women everywhere are proving it to their own satisfaction every day.

Why don't you let this scientific care keep your skin exquisitely young-looking? Get two or three cakes of Lux Toilet Soap—start today to use it regularly and watch your skin grow lovelier.

"No wonder the stars like this soap . . ." says Miss Barbara Foitz, of Indianapolis, Ind. "It works miracles in keeping the skin youthful-looking and smooth. Naturally, now that I've found out about Lux Toilet Soap, I just wouldn't use any other."

Serve hot or cold with cream or better, with a cold, thin boiled custard flavored with almond. Makes a wholesome dessert.

FOR WARM WEATHER

All Day Outfit for Summer

GOING up to town for the day may be something that happens to you three times during the Summer, when you reluctantly desert the beach, or it may roll round as regularly as breakfast - time. Whichever the case, there are several problems to be dealt with.

If you haven't taken thought in planning what you'll wear, you'll be such a shambles by this time that you'll have to give the whole thing up. If you've been one of the wise ones, you'll be fresh as a daisy and rarin' to go.

The rules of any commuting costume are: it mustn't muss; it mustn't be a magnet for cinders and dirt; it must be sheer and cool; it must look neat and sufficiently festive so it will do for anything that turns up during the day.

The accompanying sketches offer suggestions which may prove useful. They've been tried out in principle by ardent commuters and they are offered this year in styles still more amusing than those of other seasons.

PREMIERE Romance of Hollywood Today

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

"Sit here and listen," spoke Gerstenfield. "If you walk out on me you'll walk straight back into your nest. I'm telling you and I know."

"I know more about pictures and picture people than anybody else in the world," said Gerstenfield.

"I don't know anything about outside women — but I know everything about actresses like you. I know you like a diamond broker knows a stone. Your kind has passed through my hands daily for the last 20 years. You bought a ticket to Hollywood and we did the rest. Somebody gave you a job, somebody dressed you and made you up and pointed a camera at you. We paid you and you clicked, and you clicked. All you did was stay alive and do what we told you. We painted you like an artist paints a portrait in a gilt frame. Hollywood has a thousand pretty waitresses who could be in your shoes today if given the breaks."

She shivered. He had succeeded in inculcating her with a feeling of inferiority. About the only thing that remained was a suffocating desire to escape.

"If I amount to so little as that," she said, with a shriveled feeling in her breast, "let me get out of all this."

His eyes tightened. Restlessness came upon him and he walked around the room.

LAUGHED CRUELLY

"You can't get out of it, because you belong where you are," he lashed at her cruelly. "If an engine gets off the track it goes smash. The same thing would happen to you. You think you're a woman—free, white and twenty-one! You aren't! You're just a flickering photograph printed on a strip of celluloid, a thousand feet to a reel. I'm the same thing. We belong to a strange tribe. At anything else we're no good. I'm telling you! We're a race of people and we're all crazy. It's something in the blood that makes us different from the outsiders. If you break loose the only thing you'll take with you will be your body. The living part of you will stay behind out on the lot."

Something had happened to Leni's common sense. The cold logic with which she might have answered Gerstenfield was swallowed up in a palpitating excitement.

His words kept pouring into her like a strong drink, confusing the brain and distorting all reality. She became a stringed harp which his hand plucked to produce blended harmony and discord. He was striking from her soul odd strains never before heard in her secret self. The man was neither good nor evil. He was the wild eerie tone of a Gipsy violin.

"But why—why can't I go?" her voice was a vibrating echo. "Because you daren't!"

The silent voice from the deep pit of her soul kept trying to tell her that this was a lie—that she loved Lucky Cavanaugh—that she was through forever with the pictures! Now or never was the time to rise, to break the shackles, to struggle out of suffocation into clear air and sunlight. . . .

Leni brought herself up to her feet. This time Gerstenfield did not touch her. The struggle between them would be settled by a stronger force than physical contact.

"Right or wrong—I'm going to him," she said out of her pallor.

Gerstenfield moved a hand slightly, as though brushing it through cobwebs.

"How like you! You think to help this man Cavanaugh by going to him at police headquarters. Remember he is charged with murdering a woman. You go down and present yourself to the police and they, in turn, hand you over to the newspapers. And what do you become? A questionable woman spattered with dirty notoriety! Would you help him any?"

Fiery and devasting intoxication had possession of Gerstenfield and everything he said carried directness and vigor and energy.

"If you go—you'll be just one more woman for Cavanaugh to explain away to the police," he said. "You rush to him in your emotional blindness—your stupidity—and defeat your own purpose."

Leni had no answer to an argument such as this. Incontestably the man was correct. Yet this was not enough to still the twisting ache in her heart.

"But he needs me!"

"Needs you!" scoffed Gerstenfield. "He needed you last night when he received that woman in his apartment. What a fool you are, Leni. You break your heart while he—while he—"

A rudimentary sense of pity for the first time entered into Gerstenfield's voice and checked what he was saying.

The radiant gold of Leni's head bent forward a little. Last night unreeled itself, a tangled skein of triumph and terror and a meager measure of radiant bliss and devouring eagerness that she and Cavanaugh had named Love.

LONGING FOR HIM

Incredibly, it was scarcely 12 hours ago that she had been with him and was filled with tenderly patient desire. Every cell in her body was again aching with uncontrollable longing to be with him again—as soon as possible.

"I know this must be love—the kind of thing I've always dreamed about," she said aloud, as though Gerstenfield had not been present. "If what you say is true—then I wouldn't care. You convince my mind—I can't answer you when you say those things to me. But what you tell me is a lie."

She looked straight into his burning eyes. It was no easy to understand how he could dominate the lives of thousands of studio people. There was no question of deceit in what he was saying now. He believed himself.

And the only help on earth for Leni against him was her woman's instinct and the little glow of warmth that lingered in her slow-beating heart.

"You think I'm wrong, because I tell you something unpleasant," he declared. "I hurt you—and I'm sorry. If I thought you belonged to Cavanaugh I'd send you to him in spite of hell and high water. But you don't. You belong in the pictures—you belong with me."

"With you?"

3D MAN GUILTY IN ARSON CASE

Salem, June 5—One more defendant in Gloucester's arson case—Joseph Fronterio of Gloucester—suddenly changed his plea to guilty today in superior court, leaving Morris Massell, also of Gloucester, as the lone defendant on trial.

Fronterio pleaded guilty to the charges of conspiracy to burn and procuring to burn the home of Albert Hodsdon, former Gloucester tax collector, on the night of last February 20. Massell is under the same charges.

When the trial opened last Thursday, Hodsdon and Matthew Joyce of Boston pleaded guilty.

A fifth man originally in the case, Joseph Costello, is now an inmat of Danvers State Hospital, by order of the court, and Joseph Gallardo of Boston, died of burns.

BELIEVE NURSE DRUG VICTIM

Worcester, June 5—Belief that Mrs. Viola A. Grout, head nurse at Worcester State Hospital, died from an accidental overdose of veronal, taken as a sleeping potion, was expressed at the hospital today as chemical tests were begun on contents of her organs.

A number of attendants at the hospital are known to be users of veronal, which they employ to relieve insomnia and rest overwrought nerves.

One of the results of Mrs. Grout's death has been an order issued at the hospital that this drug hereafter shall be kept under lock and issued only on prescription or requisition.

Examination of the organs taken from the head nurse's body on Saturday was begun today by Dr. Joseph M. Looney, head of the hospital laboratory staff.

Heart Attack Fatal to Brown Professor

Providence, June 5—Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Central Congregational Church for Frederick P. Gorham, 62, professor of bacteriology at Brown University, who died suddenly of a heart attack at his Gloucester home yesterday afternoon. He is survived by his widow, four children, and his brother, Judge Howard Gorham of District court here.

Two Burned in Mill Blaze, Dying

Pepperell, June 5—Calvin Hills and Adrian Rondeau, employes of the Nashua River Paper Co., were on the danger list at St. Joseph's Hospital, Nashua, today, from gasoline burns they suffered while cleaning a machine at the mill. Clothing of several other employes were extinguished by fellow workers.

Promises Turn to Threats

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Four months of Democratic house cleaning and more to come. They haven't swept in the corners yet.

This will be famous as the administration without romance. Those first four months were no honeymoon.

The investigated are investigating the investigators and twice as worse.

The biggest figures in the world are stepping on the carpet and taking their questionnaires with a slight dash of bicarb of soda.

Names that would slam your door and close your shudders are merely schoolboys on the inquisitorial campus.

We thought that the campaign promises were the marshy old bunk.

But this time we were fooled. Those promises were threats.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks gunk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Bikers Halt Traffic in Australian Town

Sydney, Australia, June 5 (AP)—This town "down under" also has its traffic problems. Three miles of road were occupied recently by 7000 cyclists who took half an hour to pass a given spot during a "community bicycle hike."

VATICAN, SPAIN NEAR SPLIT

Madrid, June 5 (AP)—The possibility was strong today that the papal nuncio may be recalled from Spain and the Spanish legation at the Vatican closed because of three swift-moving religious developments.

An appeal was made to the government to "answer with deeds" a bishops' protest against a new law confiscating church treasures and making civil societies of religious orders.

Promulgation of the law Saturday was quickly followed by a papal encyclical decrying the legislation and by the excommunication of many government leaders.

"The bishops' document is a declaration of war which is now open and not concealed as previously," said Congressman Luis Bello, follower of Premier Azana, in calling for action.

SERVANTS FACE BATTLE FOR EATON BEQUESTS

THIS IS LIFE

Presbyterians Find Cure to Sin in Meditation

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I wish I had the complete list of the 80 "sins" which the press associations tell us have been presented to the Presbyterian General Assembly by a couple of bright brethren, to be distributed to Presbyterian young people throughout the country. It seems like a large order, for even Presbyterians need some time to themselves. Checking up on 80 sins every day takes time.

R. E. ROGERS

It reminds me irresistably of the closing paragraph of Sinclair Lewis's preacher novel, "Elmer Cantry." The Reverend Cantry, you may remember, had set himself the magnificent ideal of becoming permanent secretary of all the uplift organizations in the United States: the Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U., the Lord's Day Alliance, the Watch and Ward Society, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, the Anti-Cigarette League, the Society for the Suppression of Vice, and the National Association for the Purification of Art and the Press. This last we fear, is Mr. Sinclair Lewis's own invention.

Self-Examination 'Key to Idea

Only one thing stood in the way of that ambition and that was a bit of blackmail in which the pastor had got involved with a lady. Once that was disposed of, by methods more legal than ethical, the Reverend Gantry was able to face the cheers of his congregation from his pulpit and pray:

"Let me count this day, Lord, as the beginning of a new and more vigorous life, as the beginning of a crusade for complete morality and the domination of the Christian church through all the land. We shall yet make these United States a moral nation."

The Presbyterians are wiser in that they expect to promote complete morality by individual self-examination. Wiser, because the United States is obviously sick and tired of morality by legislation and even more sick and tired of the Gantrys who so recently were in power. Self-examination by the individual will probably do the individual a lot of good and won't bother other people so much.

I wish I had the whole list, because the examples given in the press story seem almost too absurd for even the adherents of a negative and colorless morality to stomach. The mere fact that the word "sins" is put into quotation marks shows that the men who made up the list are not thinking in terms of sin at all. What they seem to be talking about is social good manners, or something like that.

Compare them with the traditional seven sins that were supposed to be deadly, merely to see how flabby and namby-pamby a lot of what passes for modern religious instruction really is. The Seven Deadly Sins were: pride, covetousness, lust, wrath, gluttony, envy and sloth. Not only are these clear-cut and unescapable, but they are few enough to be easily memorable, and yet with their implications they cover pretty much all human error.

Now Even the Road Hog Is Listed

In comparison with these ponder some of the offenses which young Presbyterians are supposed to take to heart. They are:

And one which completely eludes me—"dispositonal temper"—whatever that is.

Isn't that a flabby mess of sins to ponder over before you fall asleep! What on earth is "littleness"?

I certainly would like to see road-hogs dealt with, not by self examination but by a motor-cycle officer. Superstition is perhaps the only real "sin" of the lot. Inferiority complex you can't help. If you have it, heaven help you. The only remedy is to adopt some of the other things which the chart counts as "sins" but which I have always been inclined to count as virtues.

Class distinction, for instance, is not always a bad thing. Education, wealth, a profession, an executive job do count for something in this world, and if they do not they should. Better formality than free-and-easy slackness. That way lies Nudism in dress and anarchy in manners. Aloofness is perhaps the only available escape from bores and nitwits and people with offensive manners.

Criticism is the mid-wife of progress, as Socrates said, and the critic is the gadfly in the hide of the somnolent and content. As to being a Lone Wolf, history is against the Presbyterians. Most great men and women are lone wolves. What this chart wants to do is to whittle everybody down to a single model figure all the sharp edges taken off, a contented mediocrity, the lowest common denominator of humanity. As Nietzsche once said in a similar context, "One begins to be conscious of a bad smell."

It is interesting, however, to see the Evangelicals apparently going over whole-heartedly to one of the oldest Catholic counsels for perfection. Private self-examination was the weapon, I believe, which Loyola forged as the essential safeguard against sin. The Protestant method has always been the group prayer-meeting and public confession. I am afraid that to the older Presbyterians this self-examination will smack somewhat of the doctrines of the Jesuits. More in their tradition would be Buchmanism, that extraordinary cult which is now pervading the colleges, in which young people of both sexes are encouraged to get together for rapturous and public confession of their more unmentionable sins. Princeton threw the Buchmanites out. I can think of nothing more unhealthy.

Most of Sins Listed Just Bad Manners

I wonder if the list contains that famous "sin" that Dante considered so important that he doomed those sinners to a fairly unpleasant place in his Inferno. It was the sin of "being unhappy in the sweet air," in other words, of being a grouch, a gloom, a belly-acher. I imagine it belongs in the list.

I said above that most of these seem to be simply instances of bad manners, of lack of consideration for others, of poor home training. It is probably more a reflection of the pet phobias of the men who drew it up than an objective code of any value. The Golden Rule will cover most of them. For the remainder I suggest Bernard Shaw's famous and stimulating comment on the Golden Rule.

"Do not unto others as you would have them do unto you. Their tastes may not be the same."

UNITED JEWRY IN DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Hundreds Attend Drive Opening at Opera House

The Boston branch of the American Palestine campaign and the local unit of the Jewish distribution committee will unite their respective drives in an effort to raise $100,000 for the immediate relief of Jews in Germany.

Announcement of the merger of the two campaigns was made last night by Mrs. Esther Andrews at the concert at Boston Opera House, sponsored by the American Palestine campaign.

More than 2700 persons packed the Opera House last night for the launching of the campaign. Rabbi Jacob Sonderling, former spiritual leader of the oldest Jewish congregation in Hamburg, Germany, was the principal speaker of the evening.

Speaking of the Palestine homeland, Rabbi Sonderling said in part:

"In the rebuilding of Palestine we have not only in mind the establishment of colonies, the development of industry, the beginnings of commerce, but we are thinking of a renaissance of Jewish culture, a new flowering of Jewish genius, which has given to civilization the fundamentals of its religious belief.

"Those who think of building a refuge for the oppressed and persecuted, with no thought of the spiritual significance of the place of refuge, miss the point which is involved in the objective of the Jewish people."

POISON WIDOW LAUGHS ON TRIAL EVE

Mrs. Costello Whiles Time Away Dancing to Radio Tunes

Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, in Salem jail awaiting trial for the alleged poison slaying of her husband, still retains her composure as the date for the hearing of the case draws nearer.

Yesterday she laughed and appeared contented when visited by her father, Andrew J. Fyfe, and William E. O'Brine one of her attorneys. She seemed still unaffected by her long stay at the jail.

It was learned, however, that many of the weary hours of detention have been whiled away by the comely widow in dancing to the latest tunes played by famous orchestras. Other women prisoners provide partners for her and jail officials allow this relaxation as they believe it provides exercise and relief for the women. The dancing is prohibited of course, on Sunday.

Meanwhile arrangements for the trial are rapidly nearing completion. Sheriff Frank Raymond announced last night that the widow will not be compelled to sit in a prisoner's cage but will remain with her attorneys at a table in the bar enclosure. This will save considerable room. Court officers will not sit beside her but will be at a little distance.

Science Saves Mothers' Milk by Freezing

Mothers' milk for babies, even when there are no mothers available, is now possible by a process exhibited at the 152d annual convention of the Massachusetts Medical Society, which opened a three-day session at Hotel Statler today.

Among the scientific and commercial exhibits, the process for preserving mothers' milk, essential to the life of premature babies especially, attracted most attention.

Mothers' milk is collected, placed in an aluminum container, and frozen solid on a cake of artificial ice at a temperature of 112 degrees below zero.

The milk thus frozen assumes the form of wafers which can then be preserved in jars at a temperature of 25 below zero.

The process was invented by William W. Piatt of Syracuse and perfected by Dr. Paul W. Emerson of Harvard Medical School.

BACK AFTER YEAR IN PARIS

Among those reaching Boston from Liverpool today aboard the Laconia was Mrs. Philip W. Wrenn, Jr., of Dedham. She is the former Virginia Taylor of Brookline, whose wedding was a social event last July. Since then she and her husband have been in Paris on their "grand tour." The liner docked after a stormy trip and proceeded later to New York. Others disembarking here included Mr. and Mrs. J. Randall Dunn, prominent Christian Scientists, who arrived to attend the convention here. And Miss Alice Davenport of Newport, R. I., and her mother.

NEPHEW OPENS FIGHT ON WILL OF WIDOW

Foster, Cut Off Without a Cent, Plans to Take It to Court

All of the maids, chauffeur, newsboy, errand boy, order clerks and others who received thousands of dollars in bequests upon the death of Mrs. Grace L. Eaton of Dexter st., Malden, widow of Charles L. Eaton president of the S. S. Pierce Co. of Boston, may have to battle in the courts for the money left them by Mrs. Eaton.

Notice that he would protest allowance of the will of Mrs. Eaton was filed by Frederick W. C. Foster of Brookline, nephew of the deceased, who was cut off without a cent under her will although three members of his family receive $5000 each. Ropes, Gray, Boyden and Perkins, Boston law firm, represent Mr. Foster and filed the petition.

Friends of the Eaton family say that Mrs. Eaton had told them she would not leave any money to her nephew because he had ample wealth and that his wife, who is a daughter of Samuel Winslow of United Shoe Machinery Co., also had independent means. Bequests made by Mrs. Eaton totalled $540,000 and the estate is believed to be worth from $750,000 to $1,000,000. No inventory has yet been filed.

Accused in Auto Theft

George Doyle, 17, of Broadway, South Boston, was arrested at his home today on a charge of stealing an auto, property of James Eisenberg, of Newark, on Saturday night in Mattapan.

MURPHY TO BE U. S. MARSHAL?

Reports that Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville will step out of that office to accept a federal job some time after next Wednesday spread today, but the mayor would neither affirm nor deny them.

The reports had it that Murphy has been given the pick of three federal posts for his work in the campaign to nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt in Massachusetts and for them to swing the State Democratic.

Most mentioned is the post of United States marshal in Boston. The rumor-carriers were vague about the other two.

The mayor is understood to be grooming his brother, City Treasurer Joseph L. Murphy for the position.

Others mentioned as possibilities to succeed Mayor Murphy through aldermanic vote are President George J. Moran of the board of aldermen and former President James Hynes, now a member of the board.

4 LYNN BLAZES INVESTIGATED

Lynn police today investigated four fires, believed to have been set, which caused a total loss of $4000 last night and early today. Two boys and three adults have already been questioned and released.

The first blaze occurred in an empty storehouse in Vine st. and caused $600 damage. The storehouse is owned by Charles Toffa, who lives nearby.

The home of Malcolm Demeras of O'Leary pl., took fire while the family was visiting in New Hampshire. Damage was estimated at $1200. A Nicholas ave., the home of Mrs. Pearl Kosky was damaged to the extent of $1200 while she was away visiting.

Early today the Lynn Motorcycle Club in River st. was destroyed with a loss of $1000. Police found oil soaked rags on the property.

POLICE REJOICE GEMS IN SAFE

Mrs. Albert Y. Gowen of Concord, wife of the millionaire cement manufacturer, is on the high seas today and Boston police inspectors are breathing normally again—because Mrs. Gowen's $50,000 in jewels remained in the vault of the motor ship Britannic.

Yesterday Mrs. Gowen gave police a very bad hour through her efforts to insure her jewels before she sailed to meet her husband in England.

Mrs. A. Y. Gowen

Word reached police headquarters that she was carrying her jewels around in a paper bag, like a couple of pounds of fish, and displaying them freely as she vainly sought to contact insurance agents, losing out because it was Sunday.

Inspectors, with only the number of her car to guide them, started on a search for the wealthy woman, but by the time they caught up with her she was just handing the valuables over to the Britannic purser.

Rain Predicted for Greater Boston

Rain, probably with local thundershowers, is predicted for today by Boston's weatherman today. In the wake of the fine summer weather which packed highways and beaches to capacity all day yesterday. There will be little if any change in temperature.

At least 25,000 persons visited Nantasket Beach and 15,000 were at Revere. Concessionaires at both resorts reported heavy sales of beer. The capacity crowds thronging the highways resulted in numerous delays and slow movement of traffic.

Collector Loses $45 to Bandit Trio

Search was under way today for three men, who held up Patrick Memmolo, of Chelsea st., East Boston, milk firm collector, beat him and robed him of $45, in the hallway of a house in Commercial st., North End, yesterday afternoon.

Memmolo told police the trio attacked him as he entered the hallway. He furnished descriptions of his assailants to police.

Cure for Toothache Radioed to Ship

All records for long-distance treatment of toothache were shattered in the log of the Coast Guard today, with a fisherman on the trawler Ripple, the patient.

"We have a man suffering with a severe toothache. Advise what to do," wirelessed the Ripple.

Filene Favorite of All Students

Boston students of the Katharine Gibbs School would rather be secretary to Edward A. Filene than anyone they know, according to a vote of the students.

The second choice was Clarence Darrow and then in order followed Mrs. August Belmont, William Lyon Phelps, Alfred E. Smith, Norman H. Davis, John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford.

Newton Boathouse Blaze Is Probed

Fire in the Terminal Boathouse, Charles st., Newton, was ordered under investigation today when Fire Chief Clarence W. Randlett alleged that turpentine had been used to start the blaze. The proprietor is Charles Sadler, who lives nearby.

Held in Theft Case

Joseph Lakue, 27, of Marine rd., South Boston, was arrested today on a charge of larceny of $7 from Benjamin Mickalowsus, of Telegraph st., when they were drinking together last night.

TRAFFIC CIRCLE IS DEDICATED

Parents of Lieut Murray, World War hero, who are also parents of City Councilor Peter A. Murray and four other sons and two daughters, witnessed the dedication of the circle on their 54th wedding anniversary.

Mayor Curley, City Councilor Clement A. Norton and leaders in veterans' ranks paid tribute to the man for whom the circle was named, and Capt. Edward Fallon of the Jamaica Plain police station headed the police detail for the handing of the crowds at the busy traffic center.

Besides Councilor Murray, Lieut Murray was a brother of Patrolman Thomas F. Murray, John J. Murray, George L. Murray, Miss Anna M. Murray and Mrs. Amory Murray Leland, the latter of Franklin.

Window Thieves Get $105 Wedding Rings

Thieves early today smashed two plate glass windows in South End stores. At Gofkaul's, 170 Stuart st., a radio supplies concern, they got nothing, evidently being frightened away. Shortly after they smashed the window in MacKenzie & Allen's jewelry store at 1729 Washington st. and stole 24 wedding rings, valued at $105.

POLICE HONOR SLAIN HEROES

Touching tributes to the 31 policemen who have been killed on duty during the past 50 years were paid at the annual memorial exercises at police headquarters yesterday.

The exercises were attended by several hundred relatives of the signed as President of the National silence greeted each toll of the drums as the names were called out by Supt. Michael H. Crowley.

Encouragement in their war on gangsters and the hope that courts would uphold police in penalizing offenders were the keynotes of speeches by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan; Police Commissioner Hultman, the Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad and others.

Old Sol Is Blamed for Brush Fire

Oily rags, ignited by the heat of the sun were said today to have started a brush fire which menaced storage tanks of the American Oil Co., Rindge ave., North Cambridge, yesterday afternoon. The blaze swept to within 50 feet of the tanks before it was brought under control. Heavy fumes hampered the firemen in fighting the blaze.

Air Rifle Owners Blamed for Damage

South End boys who own air rifles were due for questioning today on damage to 14 windows in Girls High school, West Newton st. Police of the Warren ave. station blame the young sharpshooters for damage that already has mounted to $100 at the school.

Missing Auto Found

Attleboro, Mass., June 5 (AP)—An auto owned by Leroy F. Hibbard, Pawtucket insurance agent, who has been missing since Wednesday, was found by Attleboro police at a second hand auto dealer's here.

Jamaica Plain Man Dies in Church

Funeral arrangements will be completed today for Matthew Cody, 67, of Paul Gore st., Jamaica Plain, who died suddenly yesterday while attending mass in the Blessed Sacrament Church, Roxbury, with members of his family.

He collapsed suddenly in the midst of the services and was removed to the vestry. Dr. William McMahon, who was also attending the services, pronounced him dead after examination.

Malden Mayor to Force Bond Issue

As a result of an informal conference between Mayor John D. Devir and the Finance Committee members of the City Council, the bond issues for $220,000 which the mayor recommended and which were killed by the Council last week, will be renewed and passed at the next meeting of the two branches.

The measures will provide employment for between 200 and 250 of Malden's unemployed on street, water and sewer construction.

Rising Prices Called Due to Actual Gains

Buying Power Expands; Spectacular Events; Rollcall of Facts

— By B. C. FORBES —

New York, June 5—America is lifting up its nose. Recovery is already substantial in a few directions spectacular has recently been bound may have been largely unofficial stimulated by expectations of further reductions of interest rates, reduced taxes, the actual inflation of the currency through printing presses, and the flooding of the country with buying power.

B. C. Forbes

The comforting, reassuring soul fact is that rising prices for security, foodstuffs, raw materials, etc., are being brought about by actual improvement in actual conditions, actual betterment in business.

The purchasing power of the American people has already been and is steadily being enormously increased.

For example, our agricultural population, thanks to enormous gains in cereals, cotton, animals, hides, wool, dairy products, etc., find themselves distinctly richer. Also, provision has been made to lighten the burdens of those who have been most pressed or embarrassing debts.

Owners of stocks and bonds, realizing that the total number of families in the United States, find their possessions increasing tremendously in market value. Moreover, a growing number of workers are having their wages increased—with every indication that more and more employers will shortly follow. The working forces and their payrolls are growing.

Even stockholders in not a few corporations are justified in looking for enlargement of their income this year if the general recovery continues.

In short, America's entire economic complexion has undergone very notable change within the short space of three months.

To become more specific, the following commodities which went reached new peaks for 1932, some of them touching the best price since 1929: cotton, corn, rye, cereals, wool, hides, pork, copper tin, lead, zinc, silk flour.

For the month preceding May 15, farm prices shot up 17 per cent a gain not matched in any one month in fully 14 years. This upward movement has continued

Steel ingot production is today running higher than at any time in fully two years.

Automobile production last month was the largest in 21 months and promises to make an unusually fine showing this month.

Lumber orders are almost double the volume of a year ago with unfilled business the best since 1930.

Not once during the last decade or more have new sales reached recent records the industry claims that not less than 80 per cent of all those workers are now employed.

Electric power consumption has steadily risen during the last month and is now approximately 5 per cent above a year ago.

The dividable industry in busier than at any season in two years

For the first time in three years canning companies report the receipt of sizable orders for future delivery.

Everybody and everything directly or indirectly identified with supplying the wants of beer are enjoying a veritable boom

The textile industry, among the first to revive and is now busy as in prosperous times. Scarcity of finished goods is actually reported

Leading department stores are doing fully 10 per cent more business than 12 months ago.

Commercial failures so far this year total 10,941 against 14,613 for the same period last year.

All this be it noted has been achieved without any actual currency inflation whatsoever

Pittsburgh Screw Wages Are Put Up

Pittsburgh, June 5—Pittsburgh Screw & Bolt Corp., effective immediately, has increased hourly wage scales 10 per cent to 18 per cent.

Company's operations are to be stepped up considerably during June, according to officials. Current flow of orders is of general character and not confined to any particular industry

Exchanges Abroad Closing for Holiday

London, June 5—Today is Whitmonday, a holiday in Great Britain and the principal exchanges are closed.

The Liverpool cotton and wheat markets and the London Metal Exchange are also closed. All will reopen Tuesday.

TODAY'S NEWS OF WALL ST. LEADERS

BROKERAGE opinions regarding the immediate course of the stock market today were divided but were largely in favor of purchasing on any good-sized recessions and nearly unanimous in the view that the long-pull action of the market is likely to be upward

General Foods Is in Good Position

General Foods, one of the most active of the food stocks, has been advancing steadily on improved prospects. Dollar sales of the Tonnage volume, which for the highest point since March, 1931. Tonnage volume, which for the first four months of this year showed an increase over the corresponding period of 1932. May recorded a high record for an even longer period. With the exception of sales figures maintained through June, net for the second quarter gives promise of exceeding 50 cents a share on the company's stock

Automotive People Remain Optimistic

Those coming from Detroit say that the automobile people are even more cheerful than their figures indicate and are looking for much better things in the industry.

Gold Bond Clause Fate Is in Doubt

Thomas F. Woodlock, former Interstate Commerce Commissioner, now a financial writer, points out that the fate of the so-called "gold bond clause" remains in doubt, instead of the clause being scrapped, many traders believe. He shows that foreign courts have usually distinguished between bonds held at home and abroad and that the United States may also have to make the distinction.

Chesapeake & Ohio Chesapeake Corp.

The rise in Chesapeake & Ohio common has carried it up within striking distance of the last issue of bonds of the Chesapeake Corp. are convertible into Chesapeake & Ohio common. Under terms of the bonds, each $1000 bond outstanding is convertible at par into Chesapeake & Ohio common at $43.97 a share for the stock. Despite the fact that every speculative buying came into the bonds when they sold under 50, there has been no conversion so far.

SPECTATOR Says:

Wall street's bulls have something to ponder about now, what with worry about the administration's attitude on the wild speculation in the markets, the adverse news on the rails, the first sign that steel operations were beginning to taper off and the heavy tone in commodities in the last week.

This puts the market in a critical spot and there should be a real test today.

Inflation Background

One thing, though, is that there has been no change in the inflation background; and unless the administration abandons its policy of bringing the dollar down to the point where debts can be repaid at somewhere near the old level, the forces that were responsible for the boom are still in operation . . .

Railroad circles believe the Rock Island, despite its troubles, may be able to meet July 1 interest requirements on its bonds. The Western roads are entering their big traffic season.

And these railroad May earnings reports will make the best reading in many moons.

Here and There

The National Lead crowd is reported to have been the big buyer of American Zinc in recent sessions . . . Upturn in Canadian Pacific is carrying the old story of a merger with the Canadian National . . . The recovery in the textile industry is attracting attention on Wall Haven . . . California Packing's big inventories, a sore spot last year, are in its favor now.

General Asphalt seems to be coming in for some speculative attention . . . While cut in agricultural acreage may raise farm prices, it might also mean that fewer tractors and harvesters, etc., may be needed down on the farm.

Cotton Consuming in Nine Months Up

New York, June 5 (AP)—World consumption of U. S. kinds of cotton in April amounted to 2,047,000 bales, against 2,120,000 in March and 1,931,000 in April, 1931, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today. During the nine months of the season from August 1 through April the world consumed 18,204,000 bales of all kinds, against 19,603,000 during the corresponding period of last season.

Own Party Leading Revolt Against President, Declares Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Washington, June 5—Conflict between the President and Congress has developed.

What does this new week show of this conflict? With startling suddenness it has popped up in several issues.

OWN PARTY IN REVOLT

The paring down by the Senate, subject to House and White House approval, of about a third of the economy bills, the economy measures of the administration and thus a threat to balancing the budget.

The pulling of the teeth in the control of industry bill already passed by the House, by the Senate committee.

The disapproval of the oil control amendment as offered by Secretary of the Interior Ickes to conserve resources by agreements among producers.

Tinkering with the legislation which Secretary Hull inspired, to save the President embargo power as a deterrent to disorders or conflicts of other countries.

It comes in the guise of sympathy for the oppressed, defense of constitutionality, and warnings against the concentration of power in administrative government.

CROOKED CLAIMS PAID

In the case of limiting the President in veteran compensation economy to cuts of no more than 25 per cent Senators tried out in response to an organized minority horrible examples of individual sufferers. These same Senators are well aware that the President has been preparing a special commission to see that injustices are not done

They do not say in these criticisms of injustices that one of the worst of injustices is when the government reaches into your pocket and mine to pay men who have no well founded claim and are able to work as you or I am, to men who never went to war and even to some deserters.

The question is not one of holding out deserved relief. The question is resistance to crooked claims. In the end that must be an administrative job. Blanket treatment is the only treatment Congress can give disability, compensation and pension legislation Cutting economy to a mere 25 per cent of all cases is a blanket treatment. It does not guarantee justice to all who legally suffer; it certainly does not guarantee protection to the average citizen's pocketbook or to the national credit obtainable only by a balanced budget.

INTERESTS IN ACTION

As to the industry bill the proposal to eliminate the licensing power of the President is a proposal to strip from the bill all efficient control of industry dedicated to eliminating wasteful competition in enforcing industrial peace and creating employment. Without power to disciplines those who will not discipline themselves, the bill may as well be thrown in the waste basket. Obviously attempts to rob the bill of this discipline comes from the interests who want no discipline, and attempts by Congress to shape the manner of administration are attempts to take administration out of the President's hands and out of his single responsibility and put it into a legislation hill where there is no responsibility.

The same principle applies to the oil control amendment.

As to the legislators giving power to the Pres.dent to embargo against other nations the country is already aware that the power of embargo is about equal to power to declare war. No one can doubt that the country should think twice before taking from Congress the power to check war declarations or war embargoes and the validity of treaties.

BAN ON RAIDS

The greatest godsend we have had against acting the fool in foreign affairs has been, throughout the history of the nation, the issues, debate and discussion in Congress and thus the opportunity for public opinion to lose aside propaganda and say a decisive "No." But Congress should make this issue with any administration a clean issue rather than a sniping game. The whole thing is too big to play jack straws with it.

There is a growing feeling in unprejudiced places that if Congress believes the President asks too much let it say so.

If Congress is listening again to organized minorities demanding to raid the treasury or to powerful interests which wish freedom from discipline in an emergency then let the President say so.

AUTO INDUSTRY GIVES SURPRISE WITH OUTPUT

By FRANK H. MELOON

The automotive industry has furnished a rare sequence of surprises this year, with constantly rising production for several weeks and well past the usual seasonal peak. The decline last week was entirely due, it is explained, to the Memorial Day holiday since, according to Benjamin H. Cram, automotive authority, daily production figures remained about the same. Note that one of the major auto makers in the previous week, and declared that the week ended May 27 was the best in the history of the business, the present selling season in which sales have shown increases over the preceding week.

* * *

Tubize Chatillon Cor. authority on the rayon industry, tells us the latest survey finds conditions in the textile industry favorable in respect to both the price situation and the production trend. The rayon market during May was a most active one, both in the spot and in the future-booking departments. Buyers evidently appreciating the low prices which rayon is being offered, especially in comparison with the prices of other textile fibers, and hoped the artificial fiber freely during the month.

Rayon production schedules were increased over their April level and it is probable that the May rate of output when tabulated will show between 58 per cent and 90 per cent of capacity. Last year production toward the end of May was very near capacity levels. Opinion in the trade is to the effect that an increased demand for rayon may be expected during July for fall delivery!

Dictating the statement for this week's issue of the American shipbuilding and sea commerce was in drastic need of a revival, points out F. C. Dumont, managing agent of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in a letter to us to-day. Dumont is succeeded by a few hours the issuance of a Washington statement that President Roosevelt desires to see the American flag on merchant ships kept on the seas even if government subsidies are needed to do it, believes, however, that any subsidies not deserved should not be paid.

* * *

The subsidy idea was advanced more than a quarter of a century ago by the National Grange, otherwise known as the Patrons of Husbandry, largest secret organization in the country. The subsidy idea has been successfully employed by foreign nations. The subsidy plan, however, was not responsible for the fact that all the coffee bartered for by the late U. S. Farm Board was dumped on the market after it was shipped from Brazil to the United States in foreign bottoms. That was due to the lack of foresight used by the Federal Board in making the deal.

Bears will do well to remember the administration has a whole bag of unused stationery expedients in case falling market averages in shares and staples go too far.

BOSTON STOCK TREND MIXED

Trend of leading shares was mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange, with narrow price changes ruling. American Telephone showed a fractional gain over Saturday's close, but was down about a point. New England Telephone recovered an early loss of a point. Edison Electric was unchanged for the greater part of the session.

Pennsylvania was more than a point lower in the carrier group while Atchison showed only minor improvement. Eastern Gas & Fuel and Economy Stores showed gains of a point. New England Public Service United Shoe and Warren Brothers were at fractionally higher levels.

Torrington was soft, slipping back almost 2 points. Losses of minor proportions were recorded for Rigelow Sanford, Gillette, Pond Creek Pocahontas and Swift & Co.

Eastern Steamship recorded a new high, up fractionally. Eastern Steamship lines reports for April deficit after charges of $107,755 against $113,784 deficit in April, 1932; and for four months to April 30, 1933, deficit of $501,024, against $369,880 deficit in same four months a year ago.

Eastern's directors declared the usual dividends.

Hears:

That no so many days ago this column reminded traders of the dangers of reaching for top profits. It was pointed out that an extremely successful Boston operator had taken his large profits and begun to look around for unexploited issues. As the final display of market fireworks took place the advice seemed premature, as it always does when caution is made unattractive by a ticker tape that literally bristles with action. But the fact of the matter is positions can now be reinstated at the same levels at least.

Reaction Limits

How far a reaction could go at this time is a delicate question. In fact it must be solved by taking frequent soundings of the general market position. For the moment it seems that all we need expect is a brief thunder shower manifesting the stale atmosphere of the marketplaces.

The best ready guide that comes to mind at this time is the probable action of prices around the lows of last Wednesday. Should important issues break through on the downside by anything more than fractions, it would seem that the bet is in for a good cleansing.

Measured by the averages such a setback could run for at least 10 per cent of the recent highs. Maybe it will go further, but we may as well wait for the results of the first test. Obviously steady support at the noted levels would suggest a near term renewal of the uptrend.

Odds and Ends

There are several fast-mooving specialties that have already broken under the lows of last Wednesday. These issues, however, are for the most part so firmly controlled by their sponsors that a false move could easily be engineered in order to throw would-be buyers off the track.

The hints of administration disapproval of wild speculative activity hit the boys right on the nose. But what could they expect after the flagrant evidences of another month ago? Speculation never fostered prosperity even though it is an important adjunct to it.

Then, again, do not forget those government bonds that seem to be floated to pay for federal needs is order that men may be employed. Inflation is not going to help tend to that. It is dangerous, that is the real reason behind the warnings. H. E. B.

LEADERS RISE WITH TRADING PACE ACTIVE

New York, June 5—Leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange registered numerous maximum gains of one to three or more points before meeting profit-taking after a mixed start today. Trading was again active.

"Get" issues were in special demand, along with some of the tobacco. The better grade of rails enjoyed especial demand.

SOME GOOD GAINS

Medium gains of three or more points were recorded for Consolidated Cigar, Congress Cigar, Crown Cork, National Distillers and Western Union.

Issues at the same time up to two or more included du Pont, Allied Chemical, Celanese, Atlas Powder, Owens-Illinois and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. The rather gains appeared for U. S. Steel, New York Central, Liquid Carbonic, American Commercial Alcohol, Consolidated Gas, Industrial Rayon, Lambert, Air Reduction and others.

The financial community read with much interest of the situation in the administration's economy program and the changes which would have to be effected in the tax laws in order to balance the budget. News that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had extended a $50,000,000 credit to the purchase of American cotton and wheat in the open market also attracted attention.

This was considered a practical step in the administration's effort to improve the agricultural situation. Additional employment was expected inasmuch as much of the processing of the cotton and wheat would be done in this country.

RECOVERY FOR TRADE

Additional evidence of trade recovery was made public over the week end. Steel operations spurted 4 points last week to 47 per cent capacity, according to the trade review Steel, which added that practically all the railroads had recently submitted inquiries for materials.

Foreign exchanges showed little change, with sterling at 4.90, unchanged, while French francs stood at 4.87 cents, a decline of half a point.

In connection with the National Tea Co. regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the common, directors said the question of increasing the dividend because of greatly improved earnings was thoroughly discussed. Conservative members prevailed upon the board to continue the rate the present to build up reserves for redemption of note issue due in May, 1933.

Youngstown sheet mill operations start this week at 44 per cent of capacity against 45 per cent last Monday and last week's average of 47 per cent.

Bonds were relatively lower in moderately active trading today, with continued strength in selected, earlier issues offset by intermittent sagging tendencies in the list as a whole.

U. S. Governments were in supply with losses of from 2-32 to 3-32 of a point sustained in the Treasury 4½s, Treasury 4s and Liberty 3½s.

Wheat Stages Rally After Starting Weak

Chicago, June 5—Helped by notice of arrangement to finance sales of $10,000,000 of United States wheat to China, wheat values turned upward today after a weak start. Extremely high temperatures in domestic winter wheat territory southwest tended also to lift prices. Opening unchanged to ¼ lower, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at ¼-⅝ decline and then rallied somewhat.

Output Is Larger for Associated Gas

Net electric production of Associated Gas & Electric System for week ended May 27 was 26,762,000 k. w. h., an increase of 11.8 per cent over the same week of 1932. Gas produced for the system was 305,000,000 cubic feet, a decrease of 1.1 per cent from the like period last year.

Sales of Norge in New Record Volume

Detroit, June 5—May sales of Norge, Detroit division of Borg-Warner Corp, were the largest in history.

"We started with orders equivalent to half the May production," said President Bloed. "There is little question but what that volume will prove the best ever attained by Norge."

Gasoline Is Higher in Pittsburgh Area

Pittsburgh, June 5.—The two-cent a gallon cash discount on gasoline has been eliminated by principal refiners in this district, effective immediately. This is in effect an increase of 2 cents a gallon and makes motor fuel 14½ cents, including taxes of four cents.

Cotton Higher in New York Trading

New York, June 5—Cotton prices today were steady, 4 to 8 points higher on trade and commission house buying and expectations of favorable Washington developments. July 9.05, Oct. 9.32, December, Jan. 9.57, March 9.71, May 9.85, 9.88.

Northwestern Loadings Up

Loadings and receipts from connections of Chicago & Northwestern in May totaled 93,277 cars. We... last 85,479 in May, 1932, up 7,798.

NEW CONTRACT FOR GEORGE ARLISS | Stars All | STAGE AND SCREEN OFFERNGS EXCEL

Star's First for New Twentieth Century Pictures Will Be Rothschild Story

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, June 5—Listen well to this piece of news, George Arliss for several years one of Warner Brothers' headliners, has signed a contract with the new Twentieth Century Pictures. He talked with Darryl Zanuck over the long distance telephone and, presto! all arrangements were made with, of course, [illegible] of Joseph Schenck.

The veteran English actor and Darryl Zanuck, despite the Ar- [illegible] an [illegible] principals be- [illegible] cause was permitted to have his [illegible] with [illegible] for the Twentieth Century Company. Darryl Zanuck [illegible] Company [illegible] Arliss' first picture will be "The House of Rothschild," a story of the [illegible] banking family. Mr. Arliss is [illegible] he was paid to return to Warner Brothers. He is to be the highest paid actor there is. Dorothea Lee Loan Crawford's next picture.

Chatter in Hollywood:

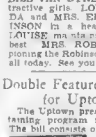
Appearing with any man in Hollywood seems in succession usually necessitates a romance. Five times has Clark Gable appeared with Jean Harlow and Art Rosson at various cafes right after one should be worthy of our attention. Jean is popular these days with many agents and Broadway favorites. Yet does she dance and dance and dance and have a grand time together. Usually Jean and Art appear with Johnny Weissmuller and Mrs. Tarzan Jones. Maybe it's supposed to Johnny and the ex-Mrs. Ruth Valles?

A Line or Two:

Rex Ingram, who left America 13 years ago and said he would never make another picture in this country, is returning to Hollywood. Only a visit, but since things haven't been going any too well for the Irish director, there is a chance he may listen, provided an offer is made him. Which one of our Hollywood beauties will have first innings with Nelson Eddy? He has arrived in town and his talent is house. His mother will live with him and his secretary and companion who are motoring here from the East. Plenty of raises over young Mr. Eddy's head to have that something that made Crews of such a success. His first picture for Warner Brothers will be Zenda for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Jeanette MacDonald, will give us a chance to hear his voice and see his screen personality. Marie Dressler's health is so good these days that there will be only a few weeks' wait before she starts work in "The Late Christopher Bean," her next picture. What a team, Marie and Lionel Barrymore!

Snapshots of Hollywood

What a party at the Cocoanut Grove! Abe Lyman's orchestra in great form. Encore after encore granted. GENEVIEVE TOBIN with a new haircut, ingenuity and mighty, mighty becoming. JOAN CRAWFORD, backless dress, dancing with the devoted FRANCHOT TONE. MR. and MRS. WALTER WINCHELL in a party with RUTH ETTING. WALTER and RUTH doing a good dance number. EDDIE CANTOR table-hopping and having a good time. TONY MORENO. JACKIE FELLDS. GROUCHO MARX LAWRENCE GRAY. HARRY CROCKER. EDWARD R. GRAHAM. JACK WARNERS, the EDDIE MANNIXES, a few of the film celebrities dancing to the Lyman music. Directors' night it seemed. JACK CONWAY. ROBERT LEONARD. MERVYN LE ROY. ARCHIE MAYO. AL GREEN. BILL VAN DYKE, with two attractive girls. LOUISE FAZENDA and MRS. EDWARD ROBINSON in a heated argument. LOUISE thinks she is her the best. MRS. ROBINSON championing the Robinson hair. That all today. See you tomorrow!



Gloria Stuart and Raquel Torres; is is hilarious comedy.

Double Feature Bill for Uptown Patrons

The Uptown presents an entertaining program of separate pictures. The bill consists of two excellent features. "The Kiss Before the Mirror" concerns itself with the eternal triangle. Paul Lukas, Nancy Carroll, Frank Morgan and Gloria Stuart handle their roles admirably. The co-feature is "So This Is Africa," starring Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and Raquel Torres; is is hilarious comedy.

Bebe Daniels, leading lady in "Cocktail Hour," feat-rum picture featured currently at RKO-Keith's.

Cosmopolitan sends another great talking picture to Boston. On next Friday "When Ladies Meet," based on the stage success, has its premiere at Loew's State. The three ladies in the drama are Alice Brady, playing the role of the widow; Myrna Loy as the novelist, and Ann Harding in the role of Claire. It's an all-star trio.

Mystery Thriller on Modern Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

"Shriek in the Night," first-run film on the new Modern program, turns out to be a most interesting melodrama. Of the mystery thriller type, it has excellent comedy relief, and holds suspense to the finish.

Ginger Rogers and Lyle Talbot are teamed as the stars of the picture, and are cast as newspaper reporters out of whose adventuring in the solution of crimes comes their romance. The dialogue is snappier than in the average movie of this kind, and the direction of Albert Ray is a feather in his cap.

The Modern also offers the action picture "Eagle and the Hawk," which is finely acted and has plenty of thrills in its flying sequences.

Vaudeville

Bob La Salle, with his "Laugh That Off" hokum comedy sketch, heads the new "Big 8" vaudeville bill at the Scollay, opening today. Running the headliner a close second will be "Russiana," a singing and dancing revue, with a sprinkling of comedy.

Fred Ardath is known as vaudeville's "outstanding drunk." He has been playing the part with slight changes from season to season, since long before the Eighteenth Amendment became a reality. The title of his new act is "Men Among Men."

Paddy Cliff has a new act with talking, singing and dancing. They call the act "A Little Bit of Everything."

Another important spot on the bill is assigned to Devito and Denny. Their act is called "A Lesson in Successful Lunacy."

Bust of Star Shown at Fine Arts

The Fine Arts, in conjunction with the showing of the great film, "Maedchen in Uniform," is exhibiting a bust of one of the principals in the cast, Dorothea Wieck, sculptured by Joseph D. Portanova, a native of Boston, who studied sculpture under the guidance of Cyrus E. Dallin, and who exhibits at the Boston Art Club.

"La Maestra" as Portanova calls it, is his impression of Dorothea Wieck, made after seeing the film.

Ethel Grenier Is Bowdoin Headliner

The Bowdoin is the new show headliner. Miss Ethel Grenier personality girl of the radio she scores a hit with her songs and piano selections. Other acts on the bill include The Andreasens, gymnasts and perch artists, Ross and Russell, comedians, Nolly Tate and Pals, animal act; Billy Barker, master of ceremonies, and Holt and Turi, musical act. The moving pictures are "Song of the Eagle," and "Looking Forward."

"Cocktail Hour" Features Bebe Daniels; Barney Rapp Orchestra on Stage

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Cocktail Hour," screen feature currently at RKO B. F. Keith's, is light diversion, as befits its title and this summer season; while on stage appear a generally excellent lot of performers, topped by Barney Rapp and his New Englanders, and the endlessly amusing Diamond Boys. These latter furnish, we aver with emphasis, one of the rowdiest of roustabout acts; at times little short of murdering one another, they "slay" the audience with laughter.

* * *

One likes to chronicle the appearances of cinema oldtimers, say, out of the old silent era. Like Miss Bebe Daniels is infrequently seen, and always pleasant to observe. Enters this lady now, arf because the movie makers believe the public is all set for a revival of musicals, the gifted Miss Daniels is given a song to sing. It happens to be a corpoel tion of Victor Schertzinger, who is the chap to whom must go credit for the direction of "Cocktail Hour," wherein Miss Daniels is the star.

Randolph Scott

The plot is the Hollywood version of the life of almost any lass who wishes to travel the primrose path, tasting her wine where she finds it and leaving the worries to the elder and less jazzy generation. There's a villain, ably handled by Sidney Blackmer, who gets the just deserts of sin at the finish by being toppled to his doom through a window. There's a handsome hero, played by Randolph Scott.

Mr. Rapp and his band, making a return visit, are warmly received, and respond with their best, which is richly good. The tenor, leaving his "saxe" to show what he can do at vocalizing, is given the heartiest sort of applause.

One never tires of the antics of the Diamonds. Rough and tumble follows they are, sure-fire with their clowning, and within an inch of commuting mayhem. But it's glorious to watch them, and the bowling they throw into the bargain is well done.

Kay Hamilton is an excellent blues singer, the Three Redheads tap away cleverly, Boice & March matter forth lively quips, and the Six Buccaneers are fast acrobats. Larry Flint and his orchestra help make it a hang up good vaudeville program.

The Voice of Broadway

—By Louis Sobol—

Down Tenderloin Lane!

WITH STEVE CLOW

Rather intriguing in one so young, so guileless, Louis, thus nostalgia of yours for Tenderloin Days! . . . Ohverwell, let's hop over to 6th ave. and 30th st. this pretty 1900 night and "do" the Haymarket . . . "Big Bill," manager and bouncer immortal, what seems like five thousand milling "hookers," a mad orgy of flesh and of Mumm's at $2.50 per quart, cocktails and highballs 15c per copy, but over a hundred other places waiting at 4 a. m. where we can go. Love is young, but the night grows old.

Twenty-ninth st. 6th ave to Broadway block—take your pick with the Cairo, Bohemia, Berlin, called "concert halls" then—or do you want to see the Arcadia on 28th, or the Tivoli, shawny with palms and Brussels carpet on 35th, or how about Mike Sweeney's on 31st, just west of 6th ave.—that's the lad they first punned the "Tell it to Sweeney on—or how about Jack's at 41st, where Ben de Casseres is explaining how he'll run for mayor or balancing a milk bottle on his coco.

God save us these 14th st and farther down that last part of missing nymphs. Allen st., then in its full pseudonims of 96 Bowery, or Volks' Garden, on the Bowery near Canal where the painted n.h. hangs, and shamelessly out of the boxes and merry seamen pity the landsmen on a night like this. Or Allentown Gardens, Vaudoula of the Beer meister—but let's back to 14th st. and watch Tom Sharkey and Al hangs over the bar at his saloon near Third ave., again alike from Bacchus and Tchaikovsky, and illfares the night who tries to force a dime on him. Or Chez—no morse but a few doors down towards Broadway with its cowboy wenches. Its flock of sailors. Its enormous popcorn. Its ironical enchantments of Beethoven and Handel over the Rabelaisian scene.

In the east the pink dawn threatens, but this is New York of the Tenderloin and we are not afraid—then, de pay, bring the ebu from his hansom "dickey" perch who asks if you would want to see "15 beautiful Japanese dancing girls"—oh, somewhere north of our Sing where we can still raise a thirst. No, we'll not go—for we know his gaff. In the eerie dawn we ride past Madison Square where the Garden, with its puissant Diana atop, has not yet seen Harry Thaw send three bullets into the unsuspecting form of Squire Stanford White. Which is to take place in 1906—I see there that night and can still see Harry staggering down the aisle to the front table where lolled the doomed architect, while Evelyn Nesbit, back stage greeting old cronies, knew little of the death-drama that was so ensanguine so many of her later years.

Sweeney's? We'll drop in there on the way uptown and have a word with Jack Guiffi, mayor, bouncer, suave dictator of the swank that crowded the place night after night. At Sweeney's they had one bad habit—that later spoiled ruin—they served ginger ale to the "entertainers" in a separate bucket! A sad one night young Vanderbilt ventured over, grabbed the bottle and poured it for the fraud. Then for Sweeney's! One of those hotelies was broken over the young Croesus's head and Prof. Mike went to the Island, the rum was through.

After that the more lambent nights of the war period—the Haymarket, de pay, bring up the ebu from his hansom "dickey" perch who asks if you would want to see "15 beautiful Japanese dancing girls"—oh, somewhere north of our Sing where we can still raise a thirst. No, we'll not go—for we know his gaff. Unmasking the Marvel Henri DeGlane's Plans Out to Regain Title | Carroll Likes Baer To Beat Schmeling Baer Is Puncher

By JACK CONWAY

I asked Henri DeGlane if he would try to rip the mask from the Blue Masked Marvel as soon as their finish mat bout gets underway at a Paul Bowser show at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

MR. BOSTON

"No," replied DeGlane without any hesitation. "That would not be good sportsmanship. I shall not unmask the Blue Masked Marvel until I have pinned his shoulders to the canvas for the second fall.

"The ordinary tug would not remove the hood-like mask. It is sewed on securely and can stand quite a bit of rough play.

"I am as curious as the fans to find out who the Blue Masked Marvel is. I do not believe it is Jim Londos or Ed Don George as I do not think either of these men would enter a ring with me under any conditions.

"They tell me Joe Stecher once ran out of a Boston ring when he discovered Joe Malcewicz was the Masked Marvel he was called upon to meet. Stecher feared Malcewicz would throw him.

"I would not care to be a championship contender if there was the least doubt in my mind about my ability to defeat all comers. So I am not worrying about the identity of the Blue Masked Marvel. I promise those fans who attend Friday night's bout that I shall unmask my opponent after the contest ends.

"If I win, I shall then open fire on Ed Don George. He defeated me after I suffered a broken collar bone in our title contest. He cannot very well refuse to give me a return match. If he should avoid to meet me, the American public, always noted for its fairness, would razz him out of the ring."

DeGlane informed me he will work in private today and tomorrow. He is anxious to test his injured shoulder against first class opposition. Henri is a trifle heavy as a result of his long period of inactivity. He has kept himself in fairly good condition by taking long walks and going horseback riding. He looks forward to scoring a victory on Friday night, and then continuing his campaign to secure a match with George.

Dan Carroll Picks Max Baer to Win From Schmeling

Dan Carroll, manager of Sammy Fuller, will be among those at the ringside when Max Schmeling and Max Baer toss punches in their 15-round battle at the Yankee Stadium on Thursday night.

"Who do you like of the two Maxes, Dan?" I asked.

"I think Baer will win," replied Carroll. "I saw Baer the night he fought Ernie Schaaf in the New York Garden, and also against Lee Kennedy on the Coast. He is a free winging puncher, and is liable to knock an opponent stiff with either hand.

"Baer is careless and leaves his jaw unprotected at times. This is his only weakness, but nobody has yet come along who could punch hard enough to dent the Californian's chin. Baer is a terrific body puncher, and everybody knows that Schmeling does not like body blows any too well. Against Sharkey and Walker the German winced when nailed with socks to the mid-section. The distance of 15 rounds will not bother Baer as he went 20 rounds with Paulino at Reno without puffing.

Baer Has Color That Makes Him Attraction

Baer has the color and flash that makes people talk about him. He likes to break speed records in big, flossy cars, while his idea of celebrating anything is to break open a case of champagne. Life to Max is one party after another. He thinks every heavyweight other than himself is just a mug, and that he can knock out anybody he can hit.

It will go hard for Schmeling if he opens up and risks an exchange of blows with Baer. The latter would probably tip him over.

I look for Schmeling, who is a fair boxer as well as a good right hand puncher, to stand off at long range and try to pick the spots for his heavy fire. He will probably move around, jab Baer with his left hand and let fly the right when there is an opening.

Although a terrific hitter, Schmeling seldom puts a rival out with a single punch. The German is not a good finisher. After he hurts an opponent he does not follow up the opening quickly. He settles down into a methodical system of attack. I do not believe anybody who follows such a style will stop Baer. The latter recovers from the effects of a hard punch quickly, and then blazes back with a fiery, two handed attack.

Schmeling will be from a 2 to 1 to a 2½ to 1 favorite at post time. The old law of averages says the German should win, but one cannot get away from the fact that a single Baer wallop is liable to upset things.

When Baer fought Schaaf in Chicago Ernie had a slight lead on points going into the 10th round, according to the score cards of the judges and referee. With only eight seconds to go, Baer nailed Schaaf on the jaw with a mighty right hand punch. Schaaf was out at the bell. Baer did not get credit for a knockout as the final gong had sounded before the referee could count 10.

I think the Schmeling-Baer bout should be a blistering affair. The styles of the rival heavyweights indicate there should be few idle moments.

SOX SLUGGER HAS MARGIN OF ONE POINT WITH .369

A large batch of doubleheaders yesterday had created a major disturbance in the ranks of the leading batters, particularly those of the National League.

Chuck Klein moved into first place in the elder circuit.

Johnny Frederick, ex-leader, failed to hit in two games and sank to fifth place. Pandy Moore of Boston, new to the big six, stepped into a tie with Virgil Davis, Phils, as he made five hits in nine trips.

In the American League Al Simmons went to second with four out of nine for a four point gain.

	G	AB	R	H	Pct.
Hodapp, Red Sox	45	187	15	68	.369
Simmons, White Sox	45	174	35	64	.368
Chapman, Yankees	37	131	29	48	.366
Klein, Phillies	47	196	39	67	.342
Davis, Phillies	46	166	18	56	.349
Moore, Braves	38	129	19	44	.340

Baseball experts are somewhat surprised at the rise of Randy Moore to a high place among the sluggers.

Moore and Wally Berger have been the only Braves up above the .300 mark, but Randy's great surge during the past week has steadily moved him up toward the peak.

Randy made two of the Braves five hits in the opener Sunday though the Tribe bowed, 3-0, to the Phils. In the nightcap he made three hits which aided the Tribe to a 5-4 victory.

Sunday Ball in Penn. Means Ideal Schedule

By JOE CASHMAN

As soon as Sunday ball is legalized in Pennsylvania, it is probable that all major league clubs will be scheduled for double headers every Sabbath afternoon throughout the season.

The game of manufacturing Sunday twin bills originating with the St. Louis Cardinals a few years back, met with much disfavor at first, but now the majority of clubs in both circuits favor it. If the number of synthetic diamond bargains being offered this season can be taken as a criterion.

And so are the fans. Some 65,000 cash customers turned out to see the Yanks and A's mingle twice in New York yesterday. There haven't been less than 20,000 and have been as many as 35,000 at a Sunday twin bill at Braves Field this spring. No single game could possibly lure such crowds at this early stage of the campaign.

OPEN DATES CREATED

The one weakness of this unofficial doubleheader system is the number of open dates it creates. With baseball prohibited in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, officially listing two games every Sunday would reduce the number of off days to any extent, but with the ban off in these two cities, every club could be carded for all the bargain matinees it desired and still play regularly.

The season could be shortened so as to complete the 154 games between May 1 and Labor Day or the campaign could be lengthened to include 168 games.

There is no question, but that Sunday doubleheaders materially aid every club's exchequer. Neither is there any question that the fewer open dates any club has, the better off it is in every respect.

Boston will not see a big league game again until Wednesday, when the Braves and Phils conclude the three-game series which they opened with a Sunday doubleheader.

BERGER FAILS TO HOMER.

The Braves and Phils are the same distance apart as when they opened their engagement. The Quakers won the opener, 1 to 0, but dropped the nightcap, 9 to 6, and remain in the cellar, four full games back of the Warriors.

Over 20,000 fans turned out in the hope of seeing Wally Berger or Chuck Klein bring his big title with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in the home run race. Neither came through. Neither did the Yankee pair in New York. Gabby Hartnett, however, hit one in Chicago and now five are tied for first place in the race, 10 circuit drives each.

Ed Holley blanked the Warriors in the opener, thanks to Hal Lee, his left fielder, who crashed into the wall to pull down a Knothe drive with two on base in the seventh and ruin the natives' one big chance to score.

Freddie Frankhouse gave the Quakers eight hits, but was always there with a strikeout in the tough spots, except in the second when the visitors put over their lone run on an error.

A four-run rally in the seventh, featured by a double by Buck Betts, clinched the nightcap for the Tribe. Seibold, Cantwell and Brandt as well as Betts saw action on the Braves hill, while the Phils called on Collins, Elliott and Rhem in vain.

Earnshaw Silent on Ban by Mack

Philadelphia, June 5 (AP)—Placed on a 10-day blacklist and fined by Connie Mack as punishment for failure to keep in condition, George Earnshaw, Athletics' hurler, today was silent regarding his troubles.

"Persistent breaking of training rules" was the reason given by Mack in announcing Earnshaw's suspension without pay. He also slapped a $500 fine on George's pocketbook, the heaviest ever imposed by the lean manager.

SOX TEST LUCK IN TWIN BILL

Special to Boston American

The visitors were originally carded to play single games tomorrow and Wednesday but agreed to double up, so that the work of making the Yankee Stadium ready for the Schmeling-Baer fight can start on Wednesday.

This is the season's third visit of the McManusmen and they have yet to leave town with a verdict over the Yanks. Neither have they been able to stop the champions up in Boston.

One win in four games was the best the Sox could do in Washington. They took the opener in 13 innings, were badly whipped in the next two tilts and dropped the finale, 4 to 3 in 13 innings.

George Pipgras ex-Yank started against the Crommmen and stayed through the twelfth frame. Johnny Allen who finished up and won the first game, went to the hill in the 13th and was found for the winning run after fanning a batter.

SOCCER PLAYER IS IMPROVED

Larson and McGonnigle bumped heads the Springfield player diving to the ground unconscious. McGonnigle received a cut over his left eye, but was able to continue play.

The 3000 soccer fans were treated to all sorts of excitement. Cian McGregor got off to an early lead when Tommy Hay scored on a low driving kick after six minutes of play. Then came the injury which sent Larson to the hospital.

With the contest which was the final for the State Soccer cup at its height, the police headed by Sergeant Frank Sullivan stepped in to stop the game.

The police maintained that there was no permit granted for the contest from the city authorities by the State Association. The fans immediately protested and demanded their money back.

Many of the fans received their money back, but there was not enough money to take care of all the rush customers. Many of those who got in for nothing got money back.

EXETER NINE, ANDOVER TILT

A schoolboy baseball classic is tossed out for the fans this Saturday with the annual Andover-Exeter academies' conflict on deck here. Andover trackmen overcame the Exeter squad Saturday, but Exeter is expected to even the spring sports score with a diamond victory.

The first game between the two schools was played 55 years ago, so their meeting continues one of the oldest of sports rivalries in the United States. And one of the most colorful as well, with the schools always staging excellent contests.

St. James at Lawrence on Wednesday. Trade at Mechanics Friday. Commerce against English, Lynn English at Classical, are the other school diamond standout duels.

St. Joseph Nine Wins

Omaha, June 5 (AP)—The St. Joseph nine won the third game of the series with Omaha, 4 to 3, in 12 innings. The Saints scored the winning run on Carson's double and Bates' single.

Canoe Club Grind on Charles June 18

The Samoset Canoe Club of West Roxbury will hold its seventh annual 26 mile canoe marathon on the Charles River, W. Roxbury, Sunday, June 18th.

The marathon will now start at the Spring st. bridge, proceed up river through the towns of Dedham, Needham and Dover to the boundary line of Wellesley and return with the finish line in front of the club's headquarters.

Diegel Due to Conquer in Open Golf Drive

This is the second of a series of articles written exclusively for Universal Service, by Gene Sarazen, British and U. S. Open golf champion, who defends his U. S. title this week at the North Shore Country Club, the man whom I would like most to win is Leo Diegel.

By GENE SARAZEN
American and British Open Champion

(Copyright 1933 by Universal Service Inc.)

Chicago, June 5—In all the field of 150 competitors, beginning to tune up for the American open championship at the North Shore Country Club, the man whom I would like most to win is Leo Diegel.

Here we have golf's finest type of sportsman. I know of no one who has taken it more often on the chin and come up smiling. Leo never lodges a complaint against anybody but himself. I have never known him to say an intentionally unkind word against any of his rivals.

JINX RIDES DIEGEL

If it is if Leo wouldn't try hard he would win sometime. He can put more earnest effort into a golf championship than anybody else I know. But something always hobs up to thwart him at the last moment.

I think Leo will see his golden opportunity and make the most of it.

It is 13 years since Diegel played in his first major open, at Inverness, in 1930. He came so close to winning that wild scramble that he never really has forgotten it.

Playing the last nine holes of the tournament he was leading. He could have taken as many as 36 strokes and won, but finished in 40 to fall in behind Ted Ray.

But Leo wasn't the only golfer who made his major debut that week at Inverness. It was also the first big event in the life of Bob Jones. Johnny Farrell, Tommy Armour and myself.

DIEGEL DUE TO WIN

Since then Jones, Johnny and Tommy and yours truly among us must have won a dozen national open tournaments. But Leo, unfortunate never has been able to come in under the wire.

Whether the wish is father to the thought or not I seriously think that "D . . . " comes to expect at North Shore.

It is very long and quite narrow and demands the wide assortment of shots that Leo has tucked away in his bag.

Only a gifted shotmaker can hope to succeed at this great layout and no man in the world in this regard is more gifted than Leo.

65,099 Fans See 'N. Y. Twin Bill

New York, June 5 (AP)—The largest crowd of the year and one of the largest on record, 65,099 fans, turned out to see the Yankees win two games from the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2 and 2 to 0. In 1928, the same clubs drew more than 85,000 for a Sunday doubleheader to set the attendance record.

Bill Dickey made his first appearance behind the plate since he was hurt in Washington three weeks ago.

H.-Y. OARSMEN MAKE CAMP

New London, Ct., June 5 (INS)—Oarsmen of Harvard and Yale were in their respective training camps here today to begin brief, but intensive drilling on the Thames for the rowing classic on June 16.

Study and examinations were interspersed with rowing on the Harvard schedule for the week at Red Top. Coach Charlie Whittlesey, who came by automobile yesterday, said he expected to begin practice spins this afternoon with some of the crew men.

Yales sweep-swingers arrived late yesterday after a call up Long Island sound on Carll Tucker's yacht Migrant. Coach Ed Leader, who came by automobile, said he would hold his first workouts today.

Foulis Wins First Money at St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., June 5 (INS)—Jim Foulis of Hinsdale, Ill., today won $1500 first money in the annual St. Paul open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 283, five under par on the Keller course.

Foulis has three strokes better than George Von Elm, Bakersfield, Calif., golfer of Los Angeles. Walter Hagen of Detroit was third two strokes back of Von Elm.

Epin Victory Gives Bill "Double" G. Mr. Khayyam Great Dry Track Racer.

—By BILL CORUM—

Chicago, June 5 (U.S.)—Chicago's centenary of progress is a tremendous show, a wonderful exposition in which one might spend the summer without seeing and understanding all of it.

But all the wonders contained therein have not thrilled me half as much as did a brown jack horse called Epin, when he came rolling down the home lane on the road at Washington Park Saturday afternoon.

He was the Sky Ride, the Streets o' Paris, the Hall of Science, the Battle of Gettysburg and the Bearded Lady all rolled into one for me because I watched Epin in a mood and trembling for I was holding a two-dollar daily double ticket for $1,125.50 in case he could keep his nose in front.

He did—just. And was I bobbing and puffing with him through that last fifty yards? Sande, in his prime, never put up a greater finish than I did on the back of that horse in the purse box.

GRAND IN THRILLS

And it is a good thing for Ed Bradley's friend Meadows and that old jock Jimmy Smith that they didn't quit get up in time, I would have hated to have to sit down there and choke 'em both before all those people, because, if you think Bradley needed that $500 purse as much I needed that Grand, a nickel will get you on the Merzan preferred list.

Anyhow Colonel Winn, I thank you, the fr-ss thank-er, and the landlord thanks you in spades.

It was before me, the thrill that comes once in a lifetime. Not only because of the $1000 dollars, which is thoroughly serious enough to me but also because only Lindsay and "Long Shot Bill" could have come up with that pair of eight blooming tiger lilies—Homerule, $50.12, and Epin, $68.32—in successive heats. How long has this been racket-ing, pal?

In turn from a prospect to a cinch to a hope to a has-been to a never-was to a possible to a probable to a sure thing to a has-been and a never-was, Epin has been anything and everything except a good horse. Not good enough to go in Mr. Khayyam's pounds and a mile and a quarter track for Omar Khayyam Ryan, but was good enough to go in Mr. Peter Wyn's Head Play pounds and a mile track for Eddie Arcaro.

MR. KHAYYAM FAST

Reared among the expensive rabbits of Mrs. Austin's beautiful little Long Island farm, Mr. Khayyam seems to have acquired the habits of a jack-rabbit, to you French-Canadian readers, a hare.

He ran his gamels and ran the devil out of young Awalt by three lengths in the fastest mile Sherwood Cox has money to date. Peter Wyn's Head Play, though a pacifist, could not be denied the essential outcome was not as commercially ended. It looks as though Mrs. Mason's colt is destined to get any the best of the riding breaks.

But the key colt was best at the race was run and now they should go Head Play up and let him rest for awhile. Head, had not ordered, he has had a long, tough siege of racing.

ONLY HANDLERS KNEW OF EXTRA TEN POUNDS

By PAT ROBINSON

Atlantic City, N. J., June 5 (INS)—Max Baer will have a 20-pound pull in the weights when he steps into the ring against Max Schmeling Thursday night.

No, I don't mean 20 pounds. That's what everybody, including Schmeling thinks and that's exactly what Eser and his handlers have tried to make everybody believe.

The Baer camp has been announcing his weight as 206 pounds but the weather-harried excuse today the Jewish lad actually will be beam at 212 pounds and will enter the ring within a pound of that figure. Schmeling probably will scale 188 give or take a pound.

HIDDEN ON SCALES

No one but his handlers have been permitted to see him on the scales, and only yesterday, after his final workout with Pete Wistort and George Simpson, his manager, Ancil Hoffman, refused to allow newspapermen to see Max on the scales.

This is one of the little surprises Baer has in store for the German, and is one of the reasons he and his manager confidently offered to bet $2000 today Baer will win.

"Get some of that $ to 1 they tell me they're offering," said Max, "and if you can't get that, do as best you can even as low as even money."

"And," added Max, "I wish you'd tell all my Jewish friends to put a little bet down on me. All of us Jews might as well make something out of this fight, especially if there are any odds."

NO "HEART" TROUBLE

Max is absolutely unflurried by Clipp Beck's $250,000 breach of promise suit. He is also giving little thought to his wife's suit for divorce.

"That makes three battles for me comin' up this month," grinned Max, "Schmeling, the ex-wife to be and the ex-girl friend. I think I'll win them all."

Wistort and Simpson both had words of praise for Baer's work after Max wound up his boxing yesterday. Said Wistort:

"He's far harder to hit with a right than he was two weeks ago. I think he'll murder Schmeling. They say Van Doral can hit, but I've boxed him and I want to tell you he never saw the day he could hit half as hard as Baer." Said the colorful Simpson:

Dempsey Assured of Financial Success

Advance sales for the 15-round match between Max Schmeling and Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium Thursday night were just short of $900,000 today and with any sort of a "break" from the weather, with a minimum "gate" of a quarter million dollars seemed a virtual certainty.

FANS WAIT TO BUY

Advance sales in these times, of course, are not as great as of yore. The paying public waits now until the last minute.

Schmeling a title fight with Jack Sharkey last year was an apparent "flop" until a last-minute rush of buying orders sent the match over the financial top. Dempsey is counting upon just such another belated outpouring of the dollars on Wednesday and Thursday.

Although Schmeling still rules a pronounced favorite at 2 to 1, there has been a swing in sentiment the last few days toward the big Californian. The chances now are that Baer will enter the ring on the short end of odds no worse than 8 to 5.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Gene Sarazen is slowly and carefully priming himself for his defense of the U. S. open title, which he starts on Thursday at North Shore Golf Club at Glenview, Ill.

Despite the fact that Sarazen is rated as the best the game can offer, there is a possibility that he will relinquish his crown this week, for the country is overrun with youngsters of great promise and one of them may go wild at North Shore.

Playing with her father, Fred W., Mary Batchelder, will make her competitive debut in the Father and Daughter tournament at Weston on Wednesday. Although she is but 13 years old, Mary Batchelder has developed a grooved swing and is an expert putter.

Sharon Open Listed

Al Ferris and Dave Nelson are doing everything within their power to put across the annual Sharon Country Club open, which will be a two-day affair starting on Friday. Only on rare occasions are open tournament players received with more cordiality than at Sharon. And the unusually useful prizes are extra incentives.

Now that Jack Egan, Filene's, has regained his timing and stopped overswinging, he is liable in figure prominently in the Retail Trade Board tournament at Weston on Friday. While a student at South Bend, Jack Egan was a member of the Notre Dame varsity golf team but until a year ago he gave up the game. With the usual result.

Due to the four-ball league competition, the battle for the Frost Cup, emblematic of store championship, will be the keenest in the annals of the organization. Some fine golfers have been uncovered this spring, while others have developed to such an extent that Jack McCarthy will be pressed to continue as the perennial champion.

John Shepard, 3d, A. Lincoln Filene, S. S. Conrad and George Milton will comprise one of the foursomes in the coming Retail Trade Board tournament. They will play in the special nine-hole event for store owners.

Bay Staters in Open

For the first time in years all of the Bay State qualifiers will start in the United States Open, thanks, in most cases, to the generosity of their club members. Charlie MacAndrew of Wollaston, Roland Hancock of Lincoln, John Shimkonis of Andover and Bobby Crowley of Norfolk are all of the North Shore Golf Club.

LOWELL SPLITS WITH TAUNTON

Lowell, June 5—After dropping the first game to Taunton, 11 to 8 Lowell came back today to win the nightcap, 12 to 6, in an N. E. loop go.

Lawrence, June 5—Quincy and Lawrence split a doubleheader here in the N. E. League, Lawrence winning the first game, 4 to 3, and Quincy taking the second, 2 to 0, in six innings.

Worcester, June 5 (AP)—Worcester and New Bedford divided a pair of thrilling New England League games. The Chiefs twice came from behind to win the opener with a two-run rally in the eleventh, 9 to 8, but New Bedford scored three in the sixth to gain a 6 to 5 decision in the second, which was halte dafter six innings by the Sunday law.

Mass. Skeet Team Victor Over Conn.

Saybrook, Conn., June 5 (AP)—A team of ten crack skeet shots from Massachusetts defeated a Connecticut team 982 to 942 in the second interstate skeet shoot match at the Essex Skeet Club field.

Tom Eley of Waltham, Mass., made a perfect record of 100 straight birds, while Carl Pickering, of Middletown, Conn., individual champion, made 98, and F. J. Pickering of Hartford, made 95.

Diamond Dust

—By JOE CASHMAN—

How Will Terry and his New York Giants must be laughing at the critics today! Here it is June 5 and the Gothamites that were supposed to spank the entire campaign very neat or in the cellar are leading the National League. They climbed on the roof by taking Brooklyn into camp in a doubleheader, while the Cardinals were splitting with the Reds.

The first game over in Flatbush saw Hal Schumacher hank the Robins, 2 to 0, with three hits. "Lefty" Clark, on the home hill, gave only six safeties. A single by Schumacher and a triple by Critz, in the eighth, wrecked him. Freddie Fitzsimmons yielded but five safeties as he steered the New Yorkers to a 5 to 1 triumph in the nightcap. The lone Brooklyn tally was a home run by O'Dou

Cards Off Roof

A three-run rally in the eighth, at the expense of Si Johnson, enabled the Cards to beat the Reds, 6 to 2, in the first game of their doubleheader, but the Bush crew came back to take the second game, 6 to 2, and knock the Mound City entry off the roof. Paul Derringer, a former Card, did the knocking.

A seven-run rally in the ninth gave the Pirates a 9 to 3 win over the Cubs in the opener of their doubleheader in Chicago. The home boys came back to take the second game, 9 to 2. The Pirates' two runs in the nightcap were home runs by Paul Waner, two of the five hits allowed by Pat Malone. Vaughan hit for the circuit for the Bucs in the opener and Gabby Hartnett hit his tenth four-ager of the season for the Cubs in the five-cornered top tie with Berger, Klein, Ruth and Gehrig.

ENGLISH LASS IS WINNER OF FRENCH TITLE

Auteuil, France, June 5 (AP)—Margaret Scriven, 20-year-old English girl, who is ranked as better than 12th in her own country, today won the women's singles of the French hard court tennis championship, defeating Mme Mathieu first ranking French woman, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Miss Scriven was the sensation of the tournament with successive victories over Mary Heeley first ranking English player, Betty Nuthall fifth ranking English star and Mme Mathieu.

It was the time an English player had won the French women's title, but the left-handed English girl proved herself a real champion, as she defeated Mme. Mathieu with surprising ease.

The heat seemed to bother the elder French woman, who had not dropped a set in her match for the finals, and yesterday defeated Helen Jacobs the United States champion, 8—6, 6—3.

In addition to her conquests of Miss Heeley and Nuthall, Miss Scriven defeated Hilda Krahwinkel, first ranking German woman player, in an early round.

22-METER BOAT SERIES OPENS ON SATURDAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The Hingham Yacht Club, headquarters of the only fleet of 22-meter boats along the Atlantic Seaboard, will open a long and colorful season next Saturday, with a series race in this class.

The race committee of the Hingham Yacht Club is composed of George E. Hitt, LeRoy Lane, Charles Cobb, Thorvald Roos and Robert Boyd. With Hitt acting as chairman this group has a list of dates which commence next Saturday and wont end until Sept 4.

DODO II DEFENDER

The Dodo II, owned by Edwin C. Lincoln, is the defender in the 22-meter class, and Lincoln hopes to again be the winner when the points are compiled at the close of the season.

Among the members of the Dodo II crew is Edwin Hitt, 15-year-old Rivers school boy, son of the chairman of the race committee, who is one of the most promising young yachtsmen in New England.

There are five 22-meter boats at the Hingham Yacht Club, which is located on what once was the Hingham steamship dock. There the water is navigable at high or low tide.

BOATS BARGAIN BUYS

All these boats were purchased for a song from Swedish brokers a year ago when the Swedish krones struck bottom. They give the Hinghamites distinction in eastern waters.

The 22-meter boats are in an international class. With 42 courses to be sailed off Hingham, those beautifully constructed 22-meter boats, O'Dou and Mighty Mites, members of the Hingham Yacht Club can rightly look forward to a "barrel" season.

So it wasn't the rising francor or the falling dollar that kept ex-champion Henri DeGlane in his native France so long after all. The reason was Mlle. Marguerite Morel, Paris beauty, who will be Henri's bride this fall. Henri will return to Paris for the wedding, and he's promised Mlle. Morel to bring the heavyweight mat crown with him for the ceremony. This is the first and exclusive picture of Henri's bride to appear in this country. Don't mention it, Mr. Winchell!

By BILL GRIMES

One of the busiest weeks on the golf schedule started today with the New England Professional Golfers' Organization at Haverhill and the Newspapermen's Golf Association talent at the Pine Brook Valley Country Club.

From today, through Saturday, there is no rest for the golfers. Although the nationwide interest will center around the United States Open championship at North Shore in the Chicago district, there are some fine attractions on the local calendar.

There will be two tournaments at the Weston Golf Club. On Wednesday, Weston stages its Father and Daughter Open tournament.

On Friday the Boston Retail Trade Board will gather at Weston for its annual tournament. The store championship is the big event of the Retail Trade Board tournament, for practically all of the stores enter four-man teams in the hopes of winning the Frost Cup.

With Wm. Filene's Sons Co. and the Shepard Stores in possession of two legs of the Frost Cup and the C. F. Hovey Co. holding one leg, the battle for the famous trophy will be merry.

The Belmont Spring and Sharon country clubs hold open handicap medal play tournaments on Friday and Saturday. There will be three divisions in both tournaments. Belmont offering two grogs and one net prize for Class A golfers and one gross and two nets for the other two divisions, while at Sharon there will be one gross and two nets in the low handicap class and three nets for the other two divisions.

In preparation for the Inter-City and Griscom Cup matches, the W. G. A. has three tournaments listed for this week. There is a handicap medal play tournament for Classes A and B at Woodland on Tuesday.

The following day Mrs. Herbert H. Hicks will stage her annual mixed foursome tourney at the Salem Country Club. On Thursday the mixed foursome addicts will be at the Belleview Golf Club.

With Rene Kern leading Wellesley by 4½ points, the seventh round of the Boston Four Ball League will be played tomorrow afternoon.

On Thursday the Twilight League swings back into action with the pacemaking Charles River octet at Wellesley. Belmont at Brae Burn and Albemarle at Winchester.

Will Henri Say 'I Do'? ---Mais, Certainement!

By JOE MOONEY

You can make hay even if the sun doesn't shine. Ask Henri DeGlane.

You can make hay in such unsuspected spots as the vast amphitheater of the Opert in Paris; again take Henri DeGlane's word for it.

You can start on such a simple adventure as an evening of "La Boheme" at the opera with your mother, and come up the well-known only girl in the world as your intended bride. Can such things be? Ask Henry DeGlane.

For just this happened to the former world's heavyweight mat champion when he returned to Paris to visit his family last spring. This fall he'll return to marry Mlle. Marguerite Morel.

APRIL IN PARIS!

April, in Paris, chestnuts in blossom . . . taxis chirping in the Place Pigale, and the midmettes tripping blithely along the boulevards. Heme is the mat warrior in the capital of the world. Home to the land where he once was a brave, brass-hatted fire laddie, and where he once toted wine casks for weary, mud-encrusted poilus up in the front lines.

Mme. DeGlane, Henri's mother, saw to it that the homecoming was suitably celebrated. A little dinner, perhaps, at the Tour D'Argent. Then to the opera, to hear "Le Boheme." There would be a few congenial friends.

On the party was Mlle. Morel, a young and (look at the picture) beautiful girl, a friend of the DeGlane family all the twenty or so years of her life.

"I asked my mother if an introduction might be arranged," explained Henri, with admirable restraint considering the fact that he was cock-eyed in love with Mlle. Morel the minute he saw her.

"It was," he continued, a little dazedly, "Mon Dieu, we're to be married when I return this fall. What do you know about that?"

Cumming, Hirsh in Court Finals

Westfield, N. J. June 5 (INS)—Patricia Cumming, 14-year-old Westfield girl, will meet Millicent Hirsh, 16-year-old New York player, who has twice won the title, in the final of the New Jersey State girls' tennis singles championship Saturday.

Patricia scored the major upset of the tourney by eliminating the favored Helen Jones of Beach Bluff, Mass.

Sunday's Stars

By Associated Press

Frank Frisch, Cardinals, and Jim Bottomley, Reds—Former made three hits and stole two bases in opener, latter walloped triple, double and two singles in nightcap.

Russell Van Atta and Johnny Allen, Yankees—Van Atta limited St. Louis Nats and one hit, respectively, fanning 12.

Red Kress, White Sox—Hit homer, two doubles and two singles against Browns.

Eddie Morley, Phillies, and Randy Moore, Braves—Morley blanked Boston with five hits in win 1-0; Moore made five hits in two games.

Gus Bluege, Senators—Singled in 13th driving in run that beat Red Sox, 4-3.

Pitched Ball Blow Fatal to Meehan

Orange, June 5—A baseball, pitched in the Orange A. C.-Charlemont Mohawks game here, killed Kenneth A. Meehan, 28, captain and second baseman of the Orange team, by breaking a rib which punctured an artery and caused a fatal hemorrhage.

J. A. Legate of the Mohawks pitched the ball. After being struck, Meehan started to first base, then collapsed. Artificial respiration failed to revive him.

Foxx Fans Five Consecutive Times

New York, June 5 (INS)—Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, 1932 home run king, struck out five consecutive times in yesterday's doubleheader with the Yankees here, against the pitching of Van Atta and Allen.

It is said he never had whiffed five times in a row in all his previous experience as a ball player.

TWI NINES IN FOR BUSY WEEK

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Boston baseballers are going to be busier than the proverbial bird dog in a briar patch this week. Nineteen games are scheduled in Larry Nadeau's intersuburban circuit featured with two inter-city clashes. The Somerville Park club of the Somerville White Sox meet in one game and the Watertown Pals and the Watertown Victory Club clash in the other.

The schedule is so crowded in the Boston Twilight League that Bill Hunnefield's Allston team plays five games in a row, and the Sheridan Club of Watertown plays four in succession. Commencing tomorrow Allston plays Concord, Lowell, Revere and the Waltham on successive evenings.

After tonight's game with the University City aggregation the Sheridan Club takes on the Cantabs again on Tuesday, Waltham on Wednesday and Concord on Thursday.

City Nines Clash

The City League game between St. Augustine and Roslindale clubs at Fallon Field tonight will provide plenty of action. The South Boston nine has a big lead in the East Division. Roslindale holds a first place tie with Hennigan in the other group.

Selectman William Sheridan has been invited to toss out the first ball in the game between the Armory Club of Watertown and Somerville White Sox, tonight.

One reason why the C. M. A. C. team of Lowell is leading the Twilight League is that seven of the eight regulars are batting .300. Driscoll, center fielder; Woodlon, 1st base, and Pat Cannavan, 3d base, are hitting .400. They look like the Yankees in disguise.

Besides the 19 games in the senior branch of the Intersuburban League this week, the juniors will play nine games, making a total of 27 games in Larry Nadeau's twin circuits.

The Hagan Club has been strengthened with the addition of outfielder Dick O'Brien, the former Somerville star.

ASSORTED RADIO AIRINGS

Novelties Find Network Favor

By N. F. T.

Another of those around the world whirls by radio is causing CBS chain bosses to feel a little chesty today. Proudly they announce an offering called "Eavesdropping on the World," which I am told is coming along down the air lanes (WAAB) promptly on the stroke of six this evening, to occupy a half hour.

* * *

Typical "so-in-les" from Paris and characteristic "Oh I say" utterances out of London, will cross wires with an "Ach du Liber" or two to properly identify Berlin. Their soft serenading, no doubt, as a Spanish contribution originating in Madrid, followed by whatever it is they figure to have heard from Rome in Italy and in Buenos Aires, down South America way. Ted Husing is reported due to have a part in the throwing of controls from our shores to the various far-flung points named.

* * *

At least it's different and rather shapes up as an interesting half hour, embracing a bit of the unusual, as air attractions go. Wonder if young Mr. Husing has in mind trying his tongue at any of those other languages? Ted is likely to attempt most anything in the way of talk. However, it should be likewise said of him that he very seldom finds himself stuck for a word. Some listeners claim his figures of speech don't always connect up as accurate expressions; but even so, there are worse word-wielders than Ted. No mention is made by the broadcasters of picking up Japan or China during this particular period. Maybe it's an oversight. Then, again, the Orient-tals might have too much warfare business in hand to take on any broadcasting.

* * *

PET PERSONALITY

A sparkling new melody half hour gets under way in New York tonight although it won't be heard in Boston. That means the "colyum" must catch hold of the 10:30, since Charles Thomas is the baritoning guest artist. Musn't miss him if it can be possibly helped; not on your tintype!

* * *

Tomorrow morning when retiring President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard makes his last public address as head man of the famous university (11:15 to 11:45) loudspeaker patrons may hear him by dialing to the WNAC wave channel.

* * *

LOCAL LATHER

Al Martin is the latest "mike" man to pass from the Yankee Network staff, his studio services winding up Saturday next. . . . Ruth Chilton keeps forging forward in Hub program plans, appearing again for contralto soloist during a new offering being launched tonight (WEEI) at 7:15 and called the "Afternoon Dinner Review." . . . What very prominent lady of the Commonwealth has just consented to do a series of exclusive social set talks? Bob (Big Brother) Emery writes a crackerjack letter . . . Jimmy Marsh, the Cascades Roof maestro airing his orchestra music over WEZE, is given to blond red blushes when people praise his dandy dance rhythm . . . Not many baton benders around that . . . Skimmia nations still being held following the public audition for aspiring announcers at WNAC round sancta tums last week. Meaning none accepted up until this writing.

Commissioner of Public Safety Daniel Needham says that the date set for the wearing of the new blue uniforms by the state police is June 10. Asked if he is still investigating the case of Henry A. Plett, chief administration clerk whose name figured in the recent state police scandal, the commissioner said that Plett has been out sick for two weeks.

REPEAL BALLOTS READY

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook says that the printing of the ballots for the June 18 special election on repeal of the 18th Amendment will be completed today. About two-thirds of the total number, 2,213,750, have already been expressed to the cities and towns.

COD SAFE AT LAST

The next fellow who goes out after the sacred cod in the House gallery will have to be a lockjawed terror if he is successful. Locks are being placed on every door leading into the House by State House carpenters.

O'BRIEN MAY RUN

Proceeding on the theory that Gov. Ely will not change his mind about retiring at the end of his present term, friends of Thomas C. O'Brien are busy laying the foundations for a boom for the former district attorney of Suffolk. O'Brien has a large following in labor circles.

Vanderbilt on World Trip

Aircaster Says:

Will Rogers Going Off the Air Soon

By AIRCASTER

Will Rogers, who claims he uses an alarm clock to time his broadcasts and to keep the audience awake, deserts the ether in three weeks . . . His employers have just received a refusal from Sir Harry Lauder to take the Rogers spot from England . . . So the comic who will fall into the Sunday night space is W. C. Fields . . . If Jack Benny, whose auto program fades June 23, doesn't get in first . . .

Serious noise trouble developing in Cleveland and Chicago . . . The unions opine that bands wafting music from cafes and cafes ought to be paid by broadcasters as well as the jernts . . . So the union ban banned remote control broadcasts . . . Network officials are filling the gaps in those towns by piping New York and Cleveland, during hours when the bands are not broadcasting . . . Minnie Lang has recovered and returns next week to the air.

RECORD RUMPUS!

Producers of recorded program technically known as electrical transcriptions, and a former member of the Federal Radio Commission, are proplaining the Federal body to remove the curse by making it legal to broadcast the canned entertainment without being required to tip off the audience, by compulsory announcement, that the music and chatter is coming from a platter . . . Tony Wons, now off the air for the summer, left yesterday for his Wisconsin camp with offers from three rival networks, but without signing anything . . . The lowdown is that Tony's wife is opposed to his continuing as a radio performer . . . Sorry to say, Tony depart, and like many others, hope he doesn't fall to show up next season.

That engaging and very promising voice which you'll hear on the WJZ Week-End Review today is that of Craig McDonnell . . . A Maryland native who went a spell of bacon to the Sizzlers, because he likes to hear 'em sizzle . . . Feisty McDonnell, who goes in for mythology, hails from the wildest of Maine this sapient data: "This is perhaps the wildest definition of the word 'jaxx' Jacchus' was another name for the god Bacchus . . . Music of Jacchus was wild and stimulating. It is possible that people first called it 'Jacchus music,' then 'jackass music' and then 'jazz.'"

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Copyright, 1933, for the Boston Evening American

Some Frenchmen, you may have read, are contemplating a national ill-will week.

OKAY, LADIES!

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

The Sans Souci Club was at home with Mrs. W. S. Young. The prize fell to Mrs. Harry Blair. This was a fancy flowered pot. These ladies have hit old man depression right in the face by limiting their favors to twenty-five cents.

FUND WANTED. We will pay $500 cash for a new, Original, Soul-Cheering, Uplifting, thrilling, Anti-Depression "PROSPERITY SONG" that will help lift us out of hopelessness and despair, inspiring us with renewed confidence, faith and courage to carry on. If you can write such a song, submit it subject to our acceptance.

MOOD MELANCHOLIC

I'm stale like an onion that's all gone to seed;
I'm pained in the arches and pained in the neck—
The closest approach to the Hesperus wreck;
My nerves are all rattled; it jars on my brain
Like scraping old nails on a cracked window pane;
I'm down in the dumps, if you really must know;
I'm scuttled, I'm sunk and I'm lower than low;
But what grouches me most, beyond any doubt,
Is I can't figure out what I'm grouchy about.

Sir Sidneh L. Rabinowitz.

Crimping Its School System

Milton has indulged itself for years in the reputation of being rich and exclusive.

Now it has closed one of its schools and eliminated all of its kindergartens, presumably in the interest of economy.

The growth, the prosperity and the progress of your community depend very largely upon the training they receive to handle the community's affairs when they reach man's estate.

The decadence of any community can be dated from the time when the education of its people lapsed.

We have been through hard times, of course, but the records of our universities, our colleges, our schools and our libraries all disclose without exception that this is the period when the public desire for education is deepest.

Boston may not be so wealthy as Milton, nor make such pretense to exclusiveness, but Boston certainly has set a more exemplary example by affording the fullest educational opportunities in the period of uncertainty and discontent.

Come to your senses, Milton. If you must economize, do not victimize your children.

Menace to Labor

The Sweatshop Evil

The campaign conducted against sweatshops and starvation wages by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser now commands the attention of the Nation as a whole.

This article approaches the subject upon the identical lines already declared in the columns of these newspapers. Says the article:

"This spread of the sweatshops is a menace, not only to the workers who are trying to exist on the pitiful wages paid, but to all workers and honest employers.

"Reputable employers, trying to compete with a concern which pays it labor two cents an hour, are under a heavy handicap.

"Even though the employers who are willing or eager to beat wages and prices down are in the minority, they are able to exert a tremendous pressure when the customer's first question in any sale is, perforce, 'How much?'

"The 90 per cent of employers who want to pay fair wages find themselves forced either to reduce wages or to go out of business."

Getting Our Share

We are glad to see that Governor Ely will apply to the national government for Massachusetts' share of the relief funds made available by the LaFollette-Costigan legislation.

The Bay State will thus receive some $15,000,000, to be distributed among the cities and towns of this State in proportion to the amounts they have expended for the care of their people who have been obliged to rely upon public aid.

Massachusetts can ask for this money with its head up, because no State in this Nation has been more generous in its concern for the welfare of its citizens, and certainly none has relied more upon its own assets without supplicating outside aid.

More Home Rule Peril

The Senate, on Beacon Hill, has approved a bill which would empower the State Department of Public Utilities to pass upon the licenses of all Boston taxicabs and to decide whether the public convenience and necessity require their operation.

Every Boston Senator voted against this bill, as he should have done.

Smiles Coming Back

Imports for immediate consumption at the Port of Boston amounted to $1,900,000 last week, the largest of any week in over two years.

The factory wheels are turning again. We are bringing in the raw materials, to be shipped out as manufactured products.

The wage scale is higher. Hardly a day passes but some New England manufactory announces an increase for its employes.

Contracts have come in. You hear of some plants working day and night to keep pace with the new demands. More jobs are in the offing.

A Repeal Rally

At noon Tuesday a rally will be held in historic Faneuil Hall in behalf of the wet candidates for the Constitutional Convention.

Arranged by the Democratic State Committee, its purpose is to advocate the election of all the anti-prohibition candidates regardless of their party affiliation in other matters.

This is a good sign because prohibition is a mighty serious affliction, affecting the every-day life and habits of all our people, and it ought to be brought above the plane of purely party political discussion.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

High Cost of Cheapness

WHENEVER I buy a cheap dress, I'm sorry.

Not that the cheap dress isn't good, in itself. Usually it's amazingly good—pretty, smartly cut, well finished.

And of course it's fun to be able to get new things so easily—not to be forced to wear the same, tiresome old garment month after month, season after season, as we did once.

Yet, when I buy a cheap dress I'm sorry. And I know that, no matter how much money I may save or how much pleasure I may receive, it's a bad bargain in the end.

For that dress isn't cheap to the girl who makes it—

Nor to the merchant who buys it—

Nor to the clerk who sells it—

Elsie Robinson

Nor to the nation in which it is made.

The cheaper the dress, the higher it costs us all!

And cheap living means cheap standards.

Ask the cop, and the judge, and the social worker, and the man at the morgue. They know where we go from there.

They know what happens when a desperate man or woman finally realizes that he or she can never hope to make the grade.

Cheap clothes. Cheap food. Cheap merchandise of every sort. We're paying a terrible price for such cheapness—and every time I buy a cheap dress I grow sick at the thought of the cost.

Then why don't I make the dress myself? I could. I made all my clothes for many years. That was real economy—once. It isn't any more. The world has changed. I'm a public nuisance unless my own viewpoints and personal habits change with it. So—I no longer make my own dresses.

The girl who makes the cheap dress gets mighty little as it is. She gets nothing at all if I made it myself.

And it's up to you and me to see that she eats.

If only for the sake of our selfish security, it's up to you and me to see that that girl eats.

For if she doesn't eat—presently you and I won't eat.

That isn't sentimental theory. That's sound, economic fact. And it's the ONLY sound economic fact. All these other financial and industrial expedients—special taxes, trick tariffs, relief appropriations, emergency public works—none of them will cure what ails us. Only a change in our own hearts will cure what ails us.

A NEW FEELING FOR THE OTHER FELLOW—

A NEW REALIZATION OF HIS PLIGHT—

THAT'S THE ONLY THING THAT WILL SAVE US.

AND WE'D BETTER GET GOING!

FOR, IF WE DON'T SAVE THE OTHER FELLOW, HE MAY PRESENTLY ARRANGE TO SAVE HIMSELF — AND THAT MAY NOT BE SO PLEASANT, FELLOW CITIZENS!

And so I'm not only sad, but I'm also plenty scared, when I buy a cheap dress, and I see dresses getting cheaper and cheaper. For I know HOW I'D FEEL if I were the girl that made that dress. I know WHAT I'D THINK, and I have a large, fighting hunch what I'd DO—

AND IT WOULD BE PLENTY!

Just Folks

A Dog

'Tis pity not to have a dog,
For at the long day's end
The man or boy will know the joy
Of welcome from a friend.
And whether he be rich or poor
Or much or little bring,
The dog will mark his step and bark
As if he were a king.

Though gossips whisper now and then
Of faults they plainly see,
And some may sneer, from year to year
My dog stays true to me.
He's glad to follow where I go,
And though I win or fail
His love for me he'll let me see
By wagging of his tail.

Now if I were to list the friends
Of mine in smiles and tears
Who through and through are staunch and true
And constant down the years,
In spite of all my many faults
Which critics catalog
Deserving blame, I'd have to name
My ever-faithful dog.

'Tis pity not to have a dog,
For dogs possess a faithfulness
Which humans sadly need.
And whether skies be blue or gray,
Good luck or ill attend
Man's toil by day, a dog will stay
His ever-constant friend.

Banking Investigation Should Be Supported

Not more remarkable are the disclosures of the Senate Committee on Banking than the fact that its investigation has not yet been stopped.

Every known device has been used to stop it, to slow it down, to deflect it from persons or subjects which it was somebody's interest to cover up and protect.

And yet the investigation has fought its way over every conceivable obstruction, from one amazing revelation to another, until today, as hearings are resumed after the weekend recess, it can point to achievements in the interests of the people greater than have been accomplished by any legislative inquiry within long memory.

One would think that such a record would still the opponents of the investigation and put a quietus upon the determined resistance it has encountered.

But interest and servility, and perhaps we should add, in the light of the Morgan disclosures, gratitude for munificent favors, are still in the field, and striving under cover to bring the investigation to a close before more facts are brought out to add to the confusion and discredit of the vicious system in which their hopes of reward are centered.

The immediate issue between the honest supporters of this investigation and the dishonest determination to smother it is on the appropriation of a suitable amount to assure the continuation of the Committee's labors.

A week ago, although Senator Fletcher, the chairman of the Committee, had made the altogether reasonable request for an additional $75,000, an appropriation was slipped through the intermediate steps to passage providing only $20,000.

This reduced sum is conceded on all sides to be wholly inadequate. In fact, the sole design of a reduced appropriation is that it shall prove inadequate, and force the Committee to abandon its work, which is far from finished.

The Senatorial partisans of the bankers regard this as a rather "slick" way of putting the dreaded investigation on ice, while not openly opposing it.

This trick will deceive no one. It deserves the excoriation which it is certain to receive from honorable Senators whose loyalty is to their public trust and to the nation, not to the banker witnesses.

To hamstring this investigation now would incense public opinion and bring suspicion and disgrace upon every Senator who had a hand in it.

Momentous and fraught with the utmost public significance as the disclosures are to date, the surface has only been scratched.

The Human Side of the News

Pecora-Morgan Duel Proves Morgan Hearing Feature

By EDWIN C. HILL

Tremendous drama is being enacted in a great, high ceilinged, white marble walled room of the magnificient office building in Washington where senators of the United States serve their country when they are not too busy looking out for themselves and their constituents. Theodore Roosevelt once said: "Congressmen must be worth what they are paid because they have so much to do. They must look out for themselves, then for their districts, then for their states and finally for their country and God, if and when."

If the great Teddy were alive and looking on today he would snap his teeth together with an emphatic addition to that list as far as some congressmen were concerned. He would insert the word "Morgan" just after "country" and before "God."

* * *

Son of Peasant Calls Leader to the Line

The blazing drama of the Senate inquiry into the affairs and operations of the House of Morgan lies in the stark fact that for the first time in three generations—one might even say four generations—of the Morgan family, the most secret and private records and dealings of that imperial clan are dragged into the glaring light and thrown across page one of the newspapers in huge headlines. The third grand duke of the hereditary line is summoned from his palace by the court command of the son of a Sicilian peasant. The great J. Pierpont Morgan, comparable only to Florence's Lorenzo the Magnificent, is dragged to court and set down among the common people. At a stroke the whole tradition of his privacy is smashed.

Newspaper and news reel photographers swarm like flies around the sugar bowl to snap every gesture and posture of the victim delivered into their hands with the advice and consent of the United States Senate. Reporters saunter carelessly up to the Olympian Morgan to ask him what he had for breakfast. And the circle of press agents walks in and dumps a tittering midget in his lap!

The analogy between Morgan the Magnificent and Lorenzo the Magnificent has striking likeness. Both houses dealt in money and ruled by the power of gold. The Morgans, like the Medicis have been collectors, patrons and connoisseurs of art. Both exerted vast influence upon the governments of their countries. Lorenzo had his Machiavelli and his Savaranola.

For the pensioning Morgan the subtle and amazingly able George Whitney plays the part of Machiavelli and of course none other than Ferdinand Pecora can be cast in the role of the fiery reformer and inquisitor who brought down the House of Medici.

What we are witnessing in the daily unfolding drama of the Morgan hearing is the old, old conflict between Bourbonism and liberalism. Pecora is effective because he BELIEVES what he says when he attributes despotism and sinfulness to the House of Morgan, precisely as Savaranola burned with the conviction that the House of Medici was a peril to the Florentine state and people. George Whitney is impressive because he BELIEVES what he says in defense of the theories and practices of the House of Morgan. Each is the product not only of generations of thought and experience but of thousands of years of mental habit.

The very heart of the drama is the congenital hatred of Pecora for the aristocratic principle which Morgan typifies. It crops out in almost every question he wields like a lashing whip. Even within the measured and courteous forms of legality, Pecora, son of the soil and the common people and inheritor of a thousand years of resentment of oppression, cannot for the life of him refrain from casting over every act and deed of Morgan a mantle of deliberate wickedness. For Pecora the principle is "The King can do no right." Whitney, scion of aristocracy, wealth and culture, cannot for the life of him refrain altogether from edging his answers with contempt for all that Pecora stands for—the upstart peasant daring to stand uncovered in the presence of his annointed master.

Morgan, an Angel, When Compared to Others

The truth, of course, lies somewhere in between. Compared to many bankers, if not most, the House of Morgan has been a consistory of angels. It has displayed the usual and historic attributes of benevolent dynasties and ruling houses—intense loyalty to friends, intense dislike for enemies, enormous ability and a great deal of valuable constructive force; but along with all that, an aloof and self-sanctified attitude toward government and law. Nobody will go to jail as a result of this savage duel between Pecora and Morgan as the jovial and engaging Morgan sits by, turning upon Pecora a face lined by doubt and puzzlement and upon the handsome and quick-witted Whitney a gaze of sheer admiration. Nobody will go to jail, but there will be a vast and lasting change in the law—the law which gives such imperial power to a private banking house of 20 men, and which permits rich men (not necessarily any of the Morgans), to sidestep their income taxes while poor John Doe sweats to find income tax money while he keeps a roof over his head.
